KAISER INSANE

It has long been supposed that the Kaiser is possessed of a disordered brain, to put the matter gently, and his latest proclamation to the German people is one more piece of evidence which goes to the confirming of the belief.

As usual, he makes free use of the name of The Almighty and enlists Him on the side of the Germans, in spite of the fact that, since the outbreak of the war, it has been clearly shown that, in this instance, Providence is not on the side of the big battalions, as Napoleon claimed it was.

Wilhelm is at liberty to make his own terms with Providence but when he asserts that the Allies are out to satisfy their lust for conquest and to enslave the whole of Europe, he simply becomes ridiculous, not only in the eyes of his enemy, but in the minds of all neutral nations.

The Entente Powers comprise the major portion of Europe, bound together to save little Belgium from the hand of the Prussian tyrant and there is no sign of their desire to enslave the people of Spain, Norway, Sweden, Holland, or Switzerland, the only neutrals in Europe, so that it is quite clear that Wilhelm's charge of slavery must be applied only to the German people. Naturally, poor old Bill considers that Germany is the whole of Europe. So far as even the Germans are concerned, the Kaiser knows thoroughly how well the German prisoners are being treated in Britain and France, while our men in Germany are treated like dogs.

If there has been any doubt as to the insanity of the Kaiser, it must now have been completely dissipated and he must be looked upon by friend and foe alike as incapable of controlling the destinies of a great nation and fit to be at liberty. Wilhelm is clearly displaying the madness which is supposed to precede destruction.

The German people are the unfortunate victims of the whims of a lunatic and they must be saved, if they refuse to save themselves. The only sensible thing for the people of Germany to do is to rise in their might and demand that the Kaiser be removed from the throne; that his weakling son be removed with him, and that a democracy be set up which will give the German nation an opportunity to develop along the lines which its real genius will choose.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

After reading the Kaiser's crazy proclamation, President Wilson must surely decide that it is not a peace conference Wilhelm needs but a doctor and a padded room in an asylum.

Norway, like the United States finds the maintenance of neutrality increasingly difficult. They can easily get over their difficulties on that score by throwing in their lot with the Allies.

It must seem like July Fourth all the year round in New Jersey, but it is a very serious matter for the Allies that so much war material should be sent into the air by some mean, sneaking enemy. Von Bernstorff's San Francisco friends have at last got what was coming to them.

It begins to look as though Von Mackenzen is to keep right on until he crosses the Sereth. It is not impossible that his ultimate aim is the capture of Odessa. He may find it another Moscow.

Tokuji Sato, a Vancouver Japanese resident, has been awarded the Victoria Cross for valor on the field in Europe. Sato was with the Japanese navy in the Russo-Japanese war.

Austria-Hungary is not wasting time hollering on The Almighty to rout a wicked enemy, but is working hard on notes to the neutrals. Vienna is thoroughly prepared for peace and it is not worrying too much about the price either.
