LUXEMBURG NOW IS WHOLLY ISOLATED

foundries, steel manufactories and engineering works are busily engaged on German orders. But while this results in high wages, and a lot of money being put into circulation, there is little to be had for money. The food position in particular is described as serious. The government has tried to get food from Holland and Denmark, but the Germans refuse to let it pass, frankly declaring that they will not have the competition of Luxembourg buyers on the markets in those countries. The Luxembourg government bought and paid for 250,000 francs' worth of butter in Denmark, but it has not reached its destination.

The country would itself be able to meet its own prime needs were it not for the fact that it still has to regularly cede a large part of its products to Germany. As a result of the complaints of the government, however, Germany has restricted its requisitions. The Duchy has to feed one German battalion, and on the other hand German soldiers are forbidden to requisition or buy eatables there. Notwithstanding the latter regulation, however, troops going to or coming from the front are well provided with paper money, and are glad for instance to pay as much as 15 francs for a pound of ham. It is true the Luxembourg soldiers who are serving as customs officers have recently obtained the right to search German soldiers leaving the country, but this right does not extend to officers, and the latter smuggle quite as much or more than their men. The Chamber is constantly urging the government to take fresh measures to combat the smuggling, but the latter dare not go too far for fear lest Germany should cut off all foodstuff supplies. The Germans recently offered to supply the entire industrial region with food, on condition that all factories without exception should work for them, but the majority of the Chamber is of opinion that this offer cannot be accepted.

THE PARSON OF PANAMINT

Millions have read this wonderful story of the wild and woolly West. Dustin Farnum has literally immortalized it by his screen characterization, one of the most interesting figures in the history of fiction of the great West. The story centres in one of the mushroom mining towns of Nevada of forty years ago. Its characters are lovable for their sincerity, for their earnestness in trying to conform to the ethics of city government, one of which necessitates a parson. And how the parson tries to purge on Sundays the evils of the week is strikingly shown. The elements of human interest, of tragedy, and of comedy form the foundation of a very unusual and wonderful story of the West. It is of gripping interest from start to finish, and should not be missed. Then there's the orchestra!
