HUNGARY'S USE TO GERMANY

Can Furnish Foodstuffs in The Kaiser's Central Europe Scheme.

In the development of the "Central Europe" idea, which many German economists and business men, as well as politicians and imperialists, are promoting for the purpose of organizing a solid empire, stretching from Hamburg to Bagdad, the role of Hungary is to be restricted to that of furnishing foodstuffs, according to a statement made recently by Dr. Herman Paasche to a correspondent of the Budapesti Hirlap.

The correspondent told Dr. Paasche, who is a vice-president of the Reichstag and one of the National Liberal (big business) Party, that the Hungarians regarded the organizing power of the Germans with friendship and admiration, and they highly esteemed German science and trade. But, at the same time, there were certain circles in Hungary which were anxious about the future of Hungarian commerce. They feared that the highly developed German commerce might, after the war, crush Hungarian commerce, which was yet in its infancy. To this Dr. Paasche, as translated by The Daily Chronicle of London, replied:

"After the war we Germans will be dependent on the Berlin-Bagdad route. In consequence of this it will be our most important interest to be on good terms with the peoples who dwell along this route—that is, with the Hungarians. But in an alliance of peoples it is only those who are economically strong that are of value. An ally that is little developed economically is not an advantage, but a burden. From this it is clear that it will be our aim to strengthen Hungary economically."

"Hungary is, above all, an agrarian State, not a commercial one, and therefore she must seek material prosperity in this direction. First of all, she must modernize her agricultural conditions. I do not mean that she should not at the same time aim at the development of Hungarian trade and industry. But she must not seek this by wrong methods. In the production of certain articles of commerce, the raw materials of which can only be second or third hand, Hungary cannot compete with those States which get the necessary raw products from their own colonies. The Hungarians must, above all, throw themselves into agricultural industry, for which they can manufacture their own raw materials."

In the course of further remarks Dr. Paasche warned Hungary against limiting herself to the production of only one kind of grain, and advised the cultivation of flax and hemp, neither of which is grown in Germany to any extent. Hungary might also, he suggested, take a prominent place in the growing of oil-producing plants, a vital necessity for Germany.

5,000 ARE WANTED FOR FORESTRY WORK

The Dominion has dispatched 5,000 men overseas for forestry work. Great Britain wants 5,000 more. The shortage of transports has necessitated greater efforts within the borders of the United Kingdom and the embargo on timber imports has compelled the Imperial authorities to supply their needs at home.

A variety of new duties has been created. Men who desire to join the forestry drafts should have some experience in mill or forest work, but the medical examinations are not so strict and the age limit is increased to 48. Men with minor defects, such as flat feet, who are free from organic defects, can aspire to the forestry drafts.

The men will be raised by drafts and no officers are required. This month the men from the lumber camps will be coming out and brisk recruiting is expected. The Imperial authorities contend that every man enlisted for the forestry battalions releases a man for infantry purposes at the front.
