WAR AND THE U. S.

At a public meeting held in New York last week it was stated that Germany and the United States were then at war. This statement was made by a former president of the United States, a former secretary of state, a former ambassador to Great Britain, and a retired judge of the United States Supreme Court. They were Messrs. Roosevelt, Choate, Root and Hughes. These men are not firebrands, but responsible citizens, who have held high office in their country and who have some considerable knowledge of the laws of nations. Germany has committed warlike acts against their erstwhile friends and there can hardly be any doubt that Germany is at war with the United States, but, as yet, the United States is not at war with Germany. It is a very one-sided arrangement. But that it will be changed in the very immediate future is evident from the arrangements being made before the meeting of Congress next week. The National Guardsmen have been taken under the control of the federal authorities in sixteen states already and mobilization has been ordered for others. This will make quite an addition to the armed forces of the republic and is only the beginning. Congress has been called to meet two weeks before the date given in the first announcement of the extra session and all things point to a speedy entrance of the United States into a state of hostilities with Germany. The state of affairs which has continued so long whereby Germany acted towards the United States on a warlike basis cannot continue forever, even with a peace-loving nation. And action when it does come, is likely to be swift. The entrance of the United States into the war will be of incalculable benefit to the Allies, even if her forces are never called upon to fire a shot. Her navy will be of very great assistance alone, and it cannot be imagined that her manhood will be content to be at war with another state and allow other nations to do the fighting for them. There are thousands of Americans already enlisted under the Allies and who are fighting today on the western front. Besides the material assistance which the United States will be capable of affording to the Allies, the moral support given by their actual entrance to the war will be very great.

It seems as if Germany has deliberately asked for this state of affairs. There are no outstanding questions between the two governments, apart from the treatment given to American property and citizens at sea, and which has arisen out of the war with the other European states. What Germany thinks she will gain by having another enemy on her hands is a matter of conjecture. Reparation will have to be made and possibly Germany thinks that the greater number of opponents the easier will be the terms of peace. So far as the history of the United States shows, she never yet has been too easy on a defeated enemy in her previous wars. In this case, Germany can hardly hope to find an easy creditor at the conclusion of hostilities. Germany has practically compelled the Americans to enter the war by her unprovoked inroads upon her neutral rights, and once in, it is only to be expected that the United States will see the matter through to a final and victorious conclusion.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Major Morait is an optimistic Hun. Whether the Kaiser's forces move forward with a graceful goosestep, as they did on a memorable occasion through Belgium, or retire hastily, as they are at present doing in France, the movement always is a triumph of tactics. But why the necessity for retreat from an impregnable position? One position surely cannot be more impregnable than another.

The P. G. E. Development Company purchased land for seven dollars an acre and sold it to the P. G. E.—composed of the same parties—for $1,000 per acre. The funds were provided by the province. Who said the opportunities for Easy Money in British Columbia were overestimated?

The All-Highest is reported to be suffering from nervous prostration. Surely his military commanders cannot have concealed from his majesty the glorious news of that "triumphant retreat" in France which is regarded as merely a prelude to "peace based upon victory," with the exaction of such a huge indemnity as alone can save Germany from the consequences of the war! If the news were broken gently it might have a tonic effect upon the august sufferer's nerves.

According to the British and French admiralty reports the German unrestricted submarine warfare is not taking as much toll as it took last fall. At the same time, it must be remembered that it has diverted a large amount of neutral shipping from British ports, which was one of the objects aimed at. The arming of American shipping undoubtedly will do much to make up for this deficiency.
