THE BEGINNING OF THE END

There is an element in Germany which cherishes the idea that the intervention of the United States against the Teutonic alliance would be a desirable thing because it would import into a peace conference a moderating influence upon the Entente attitude. There is good reason to believe that this idea is entertained in the highest quarters in Germany. In that atmosphere sanity long since has abdicated its throne and nobody can account for the delusions which flourish there. Assuredly, of all the hallucinations which have developed in the fertile soil of Hohenzollernism the craziest is the view that the intervention of the United States in this war as a hostile force might be of advantage to the combination of which Germany is the cornerstone.

It has taken the United States nearly three years to realize the real character and aims of the powers with which the Entente states are at war. In that period the republic has suffered the most outrageous violation of its rights with unexampled patience. It has been flouted and insulted times without number. Its shipping has been sunk, its citizens have been massacred, its factories have been blown up, its domestic affairs have been spied upon, its very integrity has been threatened by a secret intrigue with one of its neighbors. Its patience, misinterpreted by the savages of Brandenburg, is now exhausted and it is "mad clean through." Like all big democracies, it will be as slow to subside as it was to be aroused. Its anger will deepen and its determination will harden as the war progresses. Every affront to Belgium, every atrocity in France, every outrage upon its own rights, will add fresh stimulus to the high resolve that the sword shall not be sheathed until the foul author of this hellish orgy is not only beaten but punished.

Let there be no mistake about that. We have only to read President Wilson's arraignment of those responsible for Germany's policy to understand what the United States will fight for and demand. We have merely to study the allusions to the rights of small nations and to the new democracy of Russia, as contrasted with the autocracy of Prussia, to realize that the republic will remain in this struggle until Germany has purged herself of the evil influences which have made her a Devil's kingdom, until the countries she has ravaged have been compensated to the "utmost farthing," and until there has been, in fact, a remodelling of the map of continental Europe.

Fifty years ago the Union fought five long years the most terrible kind of war for the vindication of an ideal. It was a long time after the guns of Fort Sumter reverberated around the world before the country was thoroughly roused to the danger which threatened it, and to the necessity of making its greatest effort. When it did understand the situation it stopped at nothing. Although a young democracy, it adopted conscription. It determined to fight to the bitter end. It scorned offers of mediation which came from Europe. And it never laid down the sword until it had destroyed absolutely and finally the military resources of its enemy, that "government of the people by the people and for the people might not perish." The sword is pretty rusty, but it is now being polished. It is out of the scabbard and it will not be replaced until the same principle for which the civil war was fought to the end has been vindicated by the champions of civilization in Europe. Germany ought to re-read history. The consequences of her disregard of the lessons of Britain's history should have impelled her to review American history. The Wars of Frederick and the chronicles of the Franco-Prussian war of forty-five years ago as her mental diet have ruined her.—Victoria Times.

A THOUSAND MILES YET TO PROSPECT

In a statement made recently by Mr. John D. Galloway, assistant mineralogist for the province, he says: Prospecting has been in progress along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific for some years, but it is only recently that development may be said to have commenced. At present the only important copper producing sec-

The Brawn and Brain of a boy are not made out of books or sermons. They are built out of foods that supply in well-balanced proportion and in digestible form every needed element. These elements are found in Shredded Wheat Biscuit, a real whole wheat food which contains all the material for building the human body. A perfect food for growing youngsters. Its crispness encourages thorough chewing, which develops sound teeth and healthy gums. Children like it and thrive on it. It is ready-cooked and ready-to-eat. tion of the Northern Interior is Hazelton-Telkwa district of Omineca mining division, from which the Rocher de Boule mine contributes the greater part of the production. Along lower Skeena river, in the Babine country, and east of Telkwa, along the G.T.P. railway, many copper prospects are being developed, but production from them so far has been small. Between the G. T. P. Railway and Lillooet district there is a strip of virtually unprospected country, in which copper and other minerals may be found; this is along the eastern contact zone of the Pacific Coast range. This range is 1,000 miles long, from the International Boundary line northward through British Columbia into Alaska. It is known to contain commercially valuable ore bodies, in many places along both its eastern and western contacts.
