The moral significance of the United States espousing the cause of the Entente powers, and on the grounds that she does so in defence of the common interests of civilization will prove of incalculable value, apart from the great material assistance she will be able to render. When the time comes for the discussing of the peace terms, which will prove to be a test of the harmony of the Allies, she can be depended upon to possess similar ideals to those of Great Britain, and for this reason her part is certain to be of great importance. Her example too will exercise a powerful influence upon the remaining neutrals. Already certain of the other republics in South America are said to be considering the matter. Her example may not have the actual effect of inducing the European neutrals to join in the war against Germany on account of their propinquity to that country, but it will have definitely decided them that to take up arms for Germany would be a disastrous thing to do. The speech of President Wilson has already reverberated round the world, and the principles advocated therein will find a readier acceptance, coming from such a source, and being backed up by action.

In a material way there is a tendency to underestimate the value of her aid. Her naval strength, it is true, is relatively small, but as it will doubtless be utilized after consultation with the Allies, and is of first rate quality, its advent into the scene of hostilities must have a beneficial effect. The United States Navy can do excellent work in policing the lanes of traffic on the Atlantic, and, if considered necessary, a squadron could be dispatched to the Mediterranean to increase the Allied naval power in that sea. On land the resources of the United States are very great. Her military strength at present is puny compared with that of any of the great powers engaged in the war, but in six months or a year she could raise an army of almost any size, and, if required, send a large and formidable contingent overseas. America's taking part in the war means unlimited loans for the Allies; in other words, the resources of the country will be utilized in this way to defeat the enemy. If, as Mr. Lloyd George says, it is the silver bullet that will be the decisive factor in the struggle, the entry of the United States is of inestimable worth. With the preparations afoot the supply of munitions that has been going to the Allies can be increased tenfold. By systematizing and conveying traffic on the Atlantic, and in this way reducing the danger from submarines, and by adding to the immense shipbuilding programme under way, America can do much to alleviate the shortage of foodstuffs in Great Britain and France.

These are the main ways in which she will help, and they are one and all of such vital importance that it can be readily seen how America's decision will shorten the duration of the war. For that reason, as well as because of the tremendous moral emphasis given to the justice of the Allies' cause, the action of the United States stands in the foremost rank of the many epoch-making events of our time.

HOSPITAL FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS IN VANCOUVER

At the meeting of the city council last evening a letter was read from the managing secretary of Vancouver Hospital making an appeal for funds for the completion of a hospital for wounded soldiers. The present accommodation is taxed to the utmost capacity, making further accommodation necessary. Thirty-five thousand dollars is the sum required for the new building, of which $30,000 has already been promised, but further assistance is still required. The instituting of a tag day was mentioned. On the motion of Alderman McClymont, seconded by Alderman McMeekin, the motion was referred to the finance committee.

THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

On a recommendation of the Health Committee brought before the city council last evening, it was moved by Alderman Casey, seconded by Alderman Dybhavn, that the acting city engineer take over the management of this department.

Running on two Cylinders? Don't be a two-cylinder man. The human engine can reach the utmost of its powers through a fuel food that is entirely consumed without forced draft or waste. Shredded Wheat Biscuit supplies the greatest amount of strength-giving nutriment with the least tax upon the digestion. It is a better-balanced ration than meat, eggs or potatoes. For breakfast with milk or cream.

Made in Canada.

TENDERS FOR COAL

The lighting plant at Cow Bay requires twenty-five tons of lump coal and tenders for the supplying of this quantity were opened at the city council meeting last night. The firm of Albert & McCaffery offered to supply this demand at the rate of $9.60 per ton and the Prince Rupert Coal Co. bid $9.50. Alderman McClymont moved, seconded by Alderman Casey, that the lowest tender be accepted, which motion was adopted.
