PEACE

Speaking at the American Club luncheon in London yesterday, Premier Lloyd George said that he "can see a real peace coming, with the advent of the United States into the war." When the time for peace arrives that it will be a "real" peace is the desire of most people. Not a peace that is only a truce, and which may lead to further and more frightful wars.

Reports have been received repeatedly from neutral capitals of the efforts of some of the Central Powers to effect separate peace. Word from the Vatican comes to the effect that Austria is pressing the Pope to make a move in the direction of peace. Bulgaria is also said to be making overtures to the Entente ministers in a neutral capital through her minister there with a separate peace in view. It is very possible that these rumors are founded on fact. Indeed it is extremely probable.

The economic condition of Austria-Hungary is certainly very bad, and freed from the control of their German masters, the people of the Holy Roman Empire would sue for peace today, without any further delay. Bulgaria is also finding that the glory of war is after all an empty thing. Her people are ready for peace, and outbreaks among the population of her larger cities in favor of an immediate withdrawal from the unequal conflict have been frequent of late. Only by the iron hand of brute military force have the people been restrained.

In Germany itself, while overtures for peace have been made on several occasions to Russia, under the old regime, these were made not with any desire for peace, but only for the purpose of releasing her armies on the eastern front to be utilized in the west against the Allies. That was before her armies in the west had been compelled to retreat before the ceaseless pounding of the guns of the Allies, and before the "Big push" started.

Her civilian population are going hungry now, and have been on short commons for a long time. When the pinch is felt in the armies, when her troops can no longer get enough to eat, their stomach for fighting will to a large extent be modified. When the armies in the field and the people at home realize that the German forces are no longer invincible, in fact, learn the true state of affairs as they exist even at the present day, it is safe to say that their desire for a cessation of hostilities will be whetted.

The "real" peace spoken of by Mr. Lloyd George will be made, so far as is possible in human affairs, a lasting peace. This generation have seen enough of the horrors of war to last for centuries, and if after all the sacrifices made by the warring nations some means is not devised whereby there will be no more "war nor rumors of war," among the nations, then all their sacrifices have been in vain.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Evidently the outside world has had an exaggerated notion of the religious veneration with which the Russian people have been supposed to regard the person or office of the Czar. The impression has been prevalent in other parts of the world that they looked upon the Czar as the viceroy of God. Now they have abolished the office, made the late occupant a prisoner, and commended his estate for the public treasury. People do not abolish the office of viceregent of the Deity and imprison his person unless they have ceased to regard his in that light.

General Kuropatkin, it is reported, got eight million dollars from Berlin to let the Germans break through the Russian line; but gave his bribers the double cross, held the line solid, and sent the money to the Duma. There is nothing of the J. Wesley Allison about Kuropatkin. He does not seem to have even deducted a rake off.

Napoleon's error, by which he fell, was his belief that outside of France people could be ignored and it was only necessary to bribe or bully thrones. When the people rose at last he misunderstood the phenomenon because he had never made provision in his calculations for such a possibility and he never did come to an understanding of it. The Hohenzollern imperium has the same idea—joined to another also quasi Napoleonic and erroneous—that outside of Germany everyone has his price.

On the occasion of one of his many visits to Great Britain, generally without formal invitation, it is written that the Kaiser had a violent altercation with the late King Edward, who, after the approved British standard, promptly knocked his royal relative down. Whether the story be true or not—and it is not improbable considering the disposition of the All-Highest and the true manliness of the King—it will be some time ere any other Briton will enjoy the high privilege of chastising the Kaiser on British soil.

2,000,000 Belgians Depend on us for Bread!
Since shortly after the German invasion, the Belgians have depended for food entirely on the "Commission for Relief in Belgium". Their own store of food, even if not destroyed or pillaged, would last only three weeks—they have had no chance to raise more—and the ruthless Germans refuse to supply them!
Backed by the Belgian Relief Fund
so generously contributed in the British Empire and the United States, the neutral Belgian Relief Commission has imported enough wheat, flour and other foods to feed the whole nation so far. The great majority of the 7,000,000 Belgians left in the country have been able to pay for their daily allowance of bread—but a steadily growing number have no money left.
Unless we are willing to let these hundreds of thousands of women, children and old men starve, they must be fed at the expense of the Belgian Relief Fund. To make this possible someone must contribute nearly $3,000,000 a month—every month—all this winter!
No people under the Allied Flags are so well able to contribute generously as we Canadians! No cause has ever been more deserving of help! In the name of Justice and Humanity—for the sake of our own self-respect—but in give all we can to help our martyred Allies!
Send your subscriptions weekly, monthly or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or to the Central Executive Committee, 80 St. Peter St., Montreal.
