WHEAT AVIATING

Wheat has reached the three-dollar mark in Winnipeg. It will go much higher than that unless the Canadian Government takes a hand in the game and controls the price. Stern action now will save a lot of trouble in the future, for as surely as the sun shines the public will take charge of the food situation if the Government does not. At the end of March the quantity of wheat and wheat flour in Canada was 126,000,000 bushels. Of this 45,638,000 bushels, or only 21 per cent. of the total, were in the hands of the farmers. The remaining 79 per cent. was in elevators, flour mills, winter storage, in vessels and in transit by rail. So the bulk of the advance has not gone to the farmer. Indeed, the farmer probably gets the small end of the stick.

It is hard to make food manipulators and speculators realize that this war is not an Eldorado prepared for them by their lucky stars. They cannot adjust their mental attitudes to the extraordinary conditions of the time. They cannot understand why they should not take advantage of those conditions to swell their profits. That adjustment and understanding, however, will come to them, but the nature of the lesson will depend upon the strength of their ruling passion. The world which is now at war is a different world from that which existed in other wars. The public is too enlightened meekly to accept all sorts of impositions without taking action accordingly.

Sir Thoms White has announced in Parliament that the Canadian Government is taking up with Washington the question of the price of wheat. While it may be necessary for the two Governments to work together for the control of this and other commodities, the Ottawa authorities will have to do more than cling to Uncle Sam's coat-tail in dealing with Canada's problems. It will have to adopt measures as radical as those which Washington, with greater foresight and less devotion to privileged interests, is taking. Washington is not going to worry itself about Canada's milling interests and elevator companies. It has troubles of its own. Canada looks to her Government to solve Canadian problems. She should have a Food Board at once, a board empowered to control food production, labor, distribution and prices. It must not be a replica of the National Service Board which, having done nothing, seems to have vanished into thin air. But action, not talk, is what is needed.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Mr. Bowser, we observe, still adheres to the most manifest of his principles as a public man, "that the speculator must have his chance." He would be more at home in one of the stock exchanges, where the speculator seems to be making the most of his opportunities, than in a sphere where it is considered the duty of a representative of the people to serve the people.

If our Government were alive to its opportunities it might invite Marshal Joffre to come over and address a Canadian audience—say in Montreal. The illustrious Frenchman is handicapped in speaking to American audiences, inasmuch as he has not mastered the English language. He could speak to the French-Canadians in their mother tongue, and, Bourassa notwithstanding, he would have a grand reception.

Sir William Mackenzie is pained at the idea of the Government laying its hands upon his private property. But that same Government has invested millions in the property Sir William claims as his own and he is asking that still further sums of the people's money should be bestowed upon his system in order to enable it to carry on.

The outside world now knows what is going on in Russia. The censorship restrictions upon the publication and distribution of news of all kinds have been removed. Indeed Russia has less restrictions in this respect now than Great Britain, France, Italy or the United States. Thus reports of demonstrations, disturbances and so forth come freely over the cables, and these often are colored by German agencies in the neutral capitals through which they pass. Not unnaturally the public in the Allied countries is disposed to attach to many of these happenings importance and significance which they do not possess. It interprets the views of unbalanced agitators and cranks, of which there are a number even among the other Allies, as the views of Russia as a whole and as an expression of Russian policy. Curiously enough, it does not attach equal importance and significance to the numerous bloody riots in Germany as admitted in the German press and the Reichstag—turmoil in comparison with which the most turbulent scenes in Petrograd and Moscow are as mild as a camp meeting—nor to the growing number of desertions from the German army.
