HOME RULE AND THE IMPERIAL COUNCIL

to the Organic Unioners, Premier Borden had better go slow, if he wants to have Canada behind him he would do well to remind the Organic Unioners that all the enforcements Great Britain has made on our Home Rule since the war started were simply emergency measures of a highly temporary character, and were not to be construed as forming a habit. Premier Borden has only to look at the London newspapers to learn what the Organic Unioners intend to do to him if they get the chance. Moreover Premier Borden will observe, if he has ordinary common sense, that the Organic Unioners are doing a lot of lying about it. Perhaps the biggest whopper is advertising it as a "colonial movement"—the heart cry of Canada and the Overseas States, not the rule of the Tory self-seekers in England. When the Organic Unioners are confronted with their falsehood they answer back, "Why, look what Canada herself has done to her Home Rule since the war started."

This may be true, but it doesn't mean that we are going to keep it up. We'll do anything when the house is on fire, but after the fire is over we're going to save as much of the furniture as we can. The very first thing we will do after the war is to get all the Home Rule back that we gave away under pressure of necessity. In short, Canadian Home Rule is not destroyed, it is only suspended. The Organic Unioners, likewise Premier Borden, would do well not to forget that.—H. F. Gadsby.

URGES FREE WHEAT BY ACT OF PARLIAMENT

Ottawa, April 28.—A. K. Maclean, Liberal, Halifax, said in the House of Commons, after Sir Thomas White had delivered the budget speech, that the Canadian people had been borrowing too much and paying too little. The expenses of government had been too high. If patronage and party considerations were disregarded the surplus applicable to war payments would exceed $100,000,000. Mr. Maclean criticized the Government for its proposal to introduce the highways bill again. This was a political dodge, because the $10,000,000 it was proposed to spend could not be secured for that purpose otherwise under present conditions.

Dealing with the free wheat order-in-council, Mr. Maclean declared that free wheat should have been introduced as a budget measure. The order-in-council under the War Measures Act was only a temporary measure. It would expire when the war was over.

Sir Thomas White produced a legal opinion by the Deputy Minister of Justice to the effect that the order-in-council had all the permanency of an act of Parliament.

The other speakers were Dr. Michael Clark, Sir Herbert Ames and J. G. Turriff, who moved an amendment to the effect that free wheat should be ratified by parliamentary enactment this session.

Making a Flat World Round

When Columbus set out to reach India by sailing westward, he met with opposition and ridicule. He believed the earth to be round.

Wise men held that it was flat—that Columbus was mad—and that he'd fall off somewhere if he departed from established beliefs.

But Columbus' belief found him a continent and made him blessed of memory.

The Business World is flat to some men

Their profit-bearing shores of Opportunity stretch only so far as their grandfathers trod. Custom, superstition and apathy have set them confines which they may not pass. For instance, they believe the business year is a flat one—not an all-year round of trade, with East joining West, with Spring merging into Autumn—but just two distinct seasons, with sawed-off edges gaping into space.

They confine their activities to a Spring trade and to a Fall trade. To them there is no intervening continent with stores of waiting wealth. Their world is flat. They have not explored the mid-year months of Summer trade. June, July and August are never-never land.

Surely this conception of Summer as a "dull" season is as fallacious as the delusion that the earth was flat. People have just as much money in the hot weather and spend quite as freely as in Spring and Fall. Granted that they are not buying skates and snow shovels in August, yet they are buying staple articles. Furthermore, they have an eye on luxuries and comforts they are counting upon purchasing in the Fall.

The modern Columbus has discovered this Summer trade—this golden West lying between the known continents of old beliefs. Departing from established habit, many have made their energies and their Advertising an all-year-round proposition.

Keeping up Advertising during the Summer months not only links your Spring and Fall, but produces rich harvests from the Summer months themselves.
