INCREASE WAGES OF SCHOOL JANITORS

W. H. Derry and F. Garton are to Get $10 a Month More.

At the meeting of the school Board last night it was decided to increase the wages of the school janitors from $125 per month to $135. Both W. H. Derry, janitor of the Borden Street School, and F. Garton, King Edward School, were present and spoke for the claim. They felt that as the teachers were rated 15 per cent higher than Vancouver, the janitors should be also, but the board refused to commit itself to this. A motion by Trustee Shaw that the janitors get $140 per month was unseconded. The question of coal supply was also discussed, the janitors stating that Vancouver Island coal was the most efficient.

FISH CONSERVATION THEME OF ADDRESSES

and they were trying in Vancouver to find means of replenishing it. He did not see much relief for the future, however.

Wealthiest River.

The Skeena, the speaker said, was the most productive and wealthiest river on the coast and its future was in the hands of the people here. They should consider it a duty to exploit it in such a manner that it would be conserved for future generations. Speaking of the halibut fisheries, Mr. Poulhous told of the depletion of the banks in the east where at one time the fish was abundant, but from which the American fishing fleets had taken all the halibut. They had been allowed to rest and now they were producing again. It was not wise to depend too much on legislation for there was a maze of legislation to protect the oyster beds of the Atlantic coast and yet the oyster fisheries had been ruined. Thirty years ago the production of these had been enormous. Restrictions and rules had been put into effect but the beds had been completely ruined in spite of restrictions. This was bad for the country. It was the duty of the community to work toward the welfare of the fishing industry and all try to improve it and get the best possible results. The different interests should meet on common ground and secure legislation for the benefit of the fisheries at large.

Supply Important.

Mr. Poulhous urged that there be a campaign of publicity to induce people to use more fish. He had been responsible for the National Fish Day, which was instituted with this object in view. The great problem with food, however, was not consumption but supply. He was inclined to take with a grain of salt the talk of increased production which had been going on of late. He asked all to do their share in helping to conserve the fish in such a way that they would produce the largest amount of food without being destroyed.

Board Views.

W. E. Williams spoke of the aims of the Board of Trade in regard to the fisheries. He said it was surprising that the legislators who dealt with the fisheries here were sixty per cent men who had never been west of the Great Lakes and ninety per cent who had never crossed the Rocky Mountains. Men who assumed the responsibilities of legislation, he thought, should visit the different parts of the country so that they might be able to vote intelligently.

Mr. Williams said that the aim of the Board was to conserve and to build up, and they hoped to get the rest of Canada to help them, because the supply of fish was important to all. The people here were not kickers but they agitated for redresses, which was quite another thing. To do that was good citizenship. This was the greatest halibut port in the world and they hoped to make it the greatest salmon port. He spoke of the close season for halibut and of the difference with the canners in the past over open fishing and the cannery monopoly. What they wanted now was the right to use gas boats on the river in order that the better class of white fishermen might be induced to follow the salmon fishing business. He urged the protection of the spawning grounds and local administrative control of the fisheries, with the chief administrative offices here.

Plenty of Fish.

Mr. Conlon spoke of the bright prospects of the town, of the welcome they had received and of the desire of the Ottawa department to co-operate with the people on this coast. There was plenty of fish in the sea but the problem was to put it in the homes of the consumers. The fish belonged to the whole people and they were bound to conserve it for the whole people. He urged marketing the fish in such a manner that repeat orders would come.

Mr. Connor spoke humorously of the weather being better here than at Vancouver, of the hospitality of the people here, where the citizens were princes. The gathering of the Board at that luncheon would be a credit, he said, to a town ten times the size. Concluding, the president of the Board of Trade thanked the visitors for their addresses and the gathering dispersed.

More about
Using Water

Every so often someone tells us we do not talk enough about using water in Pacific. Use at least as much milk, and in many regions two-thirds water, and use Pacific Milk.

In a recipe calling for milk, never use over 1/2 cup Pacific, making up the difference with water.
