PROCRUSTINATION

Some days ago, Mr. Fred Pardee moved in the Dominion Parliament an amendment to the Income Tax Bill providing that a much larger tax be paid on big incomes. The amendment, of course, had special application to large incomes being harvested from the war, as these are the only incomes being enhanced at this time. It was ruled out of order by the speaker, but before this was done, an illuminating debate developed, the official objections to the proposals of Mr. Pardee being particularly suggestive. The stock argument used by Sir Thomas White and his colleagues every time somebody advocates a fair levy on war profits and incomes, was that if this were done, it would reduce the contributions to the Patriotic Fund and other public funds. The answer to this is so obvious that the argument must strike everybody as the weakest kind of special pleading.

"If those who are making millions out of the war," apropos this very subject is remarked by the Victoria Times, "contributed their fair share to the state the Government would have ample funds not only to look after the Patriotic Fund, as it should do, but to increase the pension scale and discharge other pressing obligations which are now being ignored. The present income tax legislation, in the words of Duncan Ross, member for West Middlesex, is 'a millionaires' relief act,' a twin to the measure, also introduced by Sir Thomas White, for the relief of Mackenzie & Mann.

"During the debate the finance Minister took occasion to correct the report that the proposed income tax would take the place of the war profits tax. He said that he intended to introduce another war profits measure 'next year.' Why 'next year?' Why not make the necessary provision now? The war may be over next year and super-profits a thing of the past. In that case Sir Thomas would have a fine, fat excuse for sparing the big interests, of whom he is the champion and apologist in Council and Parliament. As Mr.

Ross said in the debate, the people want action, not promises and professions. 'Not long ago,' he added, 'we heard a wealthy man, addressing a public gathering, exclaim, 'to hell with profits—to the hell where they belong!' Yet this man is willing to take five million dollars in a year for himself and his company. It is our duty to make wealth—not in a cruel way, but in a reasonable way—meet its war obligations. What sacrifice is dollars compared with that of the widow who sacrifices three sons on the altar of her country?'

In the matter of the tariff, the same regard for the big interests is displayed. To make any revision at this present time would disrupt business in the Dominion. This means, of course, to revise the tariff downward. The Government had no objection to take any chance of business disruption in their revision of the tariff in 1915, when they increased it 5 and 7 1/2 per cent. The tariff which are so high in Canada do not yield such a great revenue to the Dominion, but they serve the purpose of making the consumers in Canada pay just that customs duty extra to the manufacturers.

The tender solicitude which the Borden Government is in the habit of showing to the big interests can not be said in any way to be in the interests of the people of Canada as a whole. The Borden Government have consistently refused to regard Canada representatively in these matters, and it will soon be up to the people of Canada to declare whether they wish to have this state of affairs continued.

TREAT ORES AT HOME

Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 28.—The chairman of the Sydney Metal Exchange states that the policy of the federal government with regard to metals is that all minerals produced in Australia will in future be treated in Australia.

An exchange similar to the London Metal Exchange is to be created, and instead of metals being sold to London they will be sold to Sydney and Melbourne.

Efforts are being made to induce Premier Hughes to fix a standard price for copper for three years.

The government has made arrangements fixing the price of zinc for ten years. Regarding rare metals, Mr. Hughes has submitted a plan to the producers whereby the government will contract to take over the whole of the tungsten production at the world's current prices.
