MILITARY SERVICE

The Military Service Act is now law, and as Sir Wilfrid Laurier said last week, everybody, whether opposed to conscription or not should assist in carrying it out as harmoniously as possible. But while this obligation confronts Government and public alike, the nature of the public's co-operation, the Victoria Times says, will be governed largely by the manner in which the Government discharges its duty.

The law must be firmly and impartially administered not only as between individuals, but as between the various sections of the country. If this be not done, not only will grave injustice arise but there will be serious economic dislocation; the law will not serve the purpose for which it was intended and Canada's effort in the war will be handicapped further.

The failure to have a registration of the nation's manpower, wisely adopted by the United States after a careful study of the subject, must involve the creation of exceptionally complete and efficient machinery for the enforcement of the law. Now is not the time to enumerate the deficiencies of the measure, but it is urgent that the strongest and most comprehensive organization be established to make up for them. Unlike the United States authorities the Government of Canada is dealing with an unknown quantity. It is operating on a census seven years old, yet its system is intended to be selective. If it does not reach those who try to evade the law it will not be selective, and it is to checking evasions and locating evaders that special attention should be given.

We have before us a notification received by an American employed in this city under the United States law. It contains his draft number and an order to report to an exemption tribunal on a certain date. From their registration the authorities knew all about him and where to find him. To them he was a known quantity and they have called him. If he did not respond he would be proscribed all over his country, and upon his return would be arrested. Washington thus knows not only the names of those who respond to the draft notification, but those who do not. It is a most businesslike system and will operate without confusion and delay. The United States, of course, is organizing what will be the largest army in the world if the war should last long enough, while Canada requires only another hundred thousand men.

A law is as good or bad as its administration. Extravagant praise in the press and platform gush cannot make the Military Service Act an effective factor in the country's war effort. Only the Government can do that, with the active support of the public which for the most part will be given if the Government acts in such a manner as to invite it. The Government's stern task did not end with the Royal assent to the bill. It has not yet begun. It will not have ended until the last man of the hundred thousand called for is performing his military duties. There must be no vacillation and time-serving under the cover of political flap-doodle and frantic flag waving. The public will demand results and nothing but results, and to that end, we are sure, will patriotically do its part in making the military service law effective.

RED CROSS NOTES

The sale of home-cooking held last Friday, conducted by Miss Eason and Miss Hays, realized the sum of $32.35. The thanks of the society are given to these two ladies as well as to all those who contributed to it.

In the drawings, the articles presented and won are as follows: Mrs. P. W. Anderson gave a centrepiece which was won by Mrs. G. C. Walker; Mrs. D. G. Stewart gave a work bag won by Mrs. Cornish; P. R. Bazaar a plate, won by Mrs. C. J. Graham; Miss Eason, silk handkerchiefs, won by Mrs. Christie; Miss Hays, rose beads, won by E. R. Jenner; dollies won by Miss E. Vickers; tobacco won by W. E. Burritt.

The sale of home-cooking to be held on Friday of this week will be under the charge of Mrs. Birnie and Miss Hudson. The sale

Don't Eat Less—But Eat Better. There is no need of anyone going hungry. Canadians should eat foods that supply the greatest amount of nutriment at the lowest cost. The whole wheat grain is the most perfect food given to man. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is the whole wheat grain prepared in a digestible form. Every particle of the whole wheat berry is used—nothing wasted, nothing thrown away. Two or three of these biscuits with milk, sliced peaches or other fruits make a nourishing, satisfying meal at a cost of only a few cents.

Made in Canada.

will take place in the Red Cross tent as usual.

The demand for home-cooking at these sales far exceeds the supply, and if these sales are to continue successfully, greater contributions will be necessary. Ladies come in to buy as they say "it is too hot to bake," forgetting that the heat is felt all round, and if all come to buy, there will be nothing for sale. The men in the trenches fight and are wounded whether it is hot or cold, and we must stand behind the men.
