ADMIRAL SCHEER THINKS AMERICANS HARMLESS

Amsterdam, Sept. 5.—Confidence in the effect of unrestricted submarine warfare was expressed by Admiral Riehnardt Scheer, commander of the German battle fleet, in an interview with the Leipzig Tagblatt, the admiral declared that he expected "everything from it."

"This confidence," he said, "is shared by all our submarine commanders and no difference of opinion exists about it in our navy. It would be a mistake to name a definite date, but I am fully convinced that if the rate of the sinkings continue as at present the day must come when England will recognize that the war does not pay."

Questioned about losses of submarines and as to the anti-submarine methods of the Allies, Admiral Scheer said:

"With almost ideal obstinacy the English miss the mark and so far we have been met only with guns, not mines, and not with anti-submarine appliances. I can confirm the statement recently made regarding our losses which on an average are two or three monthly, and are more than equalled by new construction."

Regarding the support given by the United States to Great Britain Admiral Scheer had this to say:

"I do not underestimate it; neither do I attach too much importance to it. The Americans may make themselves unpleasant by means of increased supplies of aeroplanes and other materials, but they can hardly harm us seriously from a military point of view and they will never become dangerous. They will not be able to turn the scale in favor of the Entente any more than Roumania."

Admiral Scheer expressed his opinion that his submarines will have decided the issue of the war before the United States is ready to send a large army to Europe.
