GREATER SACRIFICES

In commenting upon the laudable efforts of the Government during this last session of the Dominion Parliament to ensure their return to power after the coming election, most of the remarks made by the Tory press contain nothing but praise for the manner in which the situation has been handled. Such remarks of course, are not unexpected. Indeed it would be surprising were they otherwise. This however, does not detract from the littleness of the praise. For any constructive legislation, of course, praise for the duty done is obvious, but censure for that which has not been done, of course, is lacking. This also was to be expected. Nevertheless, there is so much more calling for censure than praise.

In speaking of the session just closed, the Victoria Colonist says that "it has been marked by the passing of legislation designed to consecrate the country's manhood to victory in the world struggle," and goes on to talk of the ravages of war robbing many of their fondest illusions, and the Colonist is quite sure that the country as a whole is ready to undergo even greater sacrifices than any of the past to ensure victory. Which is all very well so far as it goes.

This, however, does not seem to have been the idea of the Borden Government, in all respects. The "country as a whole" would seem to carry a restricted meaning with them. The "country as a whole" apparently from their point of view does not include the profiteer, nor the possessors of the big incomes. These classes of the community are doubtless ready to undergo the greater sacrifices which the Colonist speaks of, but such is not the opinion of the Borden Government, for they have not seen fit to ask that they should even undergo that portion of the sacrifice which the other classes of the community have been compelled to shoulder.

On the other hand, the Borden Government have given them every opportunity to get as much as they can from the wage earners and the soldiers' dependents in the shape of higher prices. The poor man with a small monthly wage or salary has had the bulk of the sacrifice to bear so far. This, of course, is nothing new, and so far the Borden Government has afforded no relief. One of the facts that the Colonist in its apology is silent about. The great achievement of the Borden Government is the consecrating of the country's manhood to victory. The consecration of the country's wealth is a different thing.

What practically all Canada demands, except the Tory party men, is the equalization of the burden of the war and the sacrifice which it entails. Having consecrated the manhood of the country, it has been left to their successors to put the principle of conscription into force on a much wider scale. It is all very well for the Colonist to tell the women who have not received the vote that Sir Robert Borden promises a nation-wide measure of women suffrage before long. But that will not permit them to record their opinion of Sir Robert and his colleagues at the coming election, as the women of Canada would like to do. They would like to let him know how they regard the government responsible for the Ross rifle, the graft scandals, and Sir Joseph Flavelle and his fifty-two cents a pound bacon. No doubt the soldiers' wives, mothers, widows and female relatives who are to be permitted to vote will take these little matters into consideration before dropping a ballot.

The Colonist "damns with faint praise" the C. N. R. steal. It says: "The cost to the country is not known. From our viewpoint such a move in the direction of national ownership should have not been attempted in war time, as we are under so many other financial obligations." But not one word does the Colonist make regarding the iniquity of paying good money for worthless stock, to the friends of the Finance Minister.

The Colonist gets away off, however, when it says that the war Liberals are coming to the conclusion that he is the only logical leader in the country. The Liberals have come to the

A Pound of Whole Wheat contains 1700 calories, says the chemist—but it doesn't contain any calories for you unless you can digest it. It is what you digest, not what you eat, that supplies nourishment for the day's work. It is a time to cut out expensive foods that generally contain little nutriment. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is 100 per cent. whole wheat—nothing wasted, nothing thrown away. It is real man-power food. Two or three of these little loaves of baked whole wheat with milk and fresh fruits make a nourishing, strengthening meal at a cost of only a few cents.

THE FIGHTING FUND

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—Propaganda among Germans in western Canada to raise a "campaign fund" for the preservation of their language and to elect members to parliament, has been unearthed in documents transmitted from police headquarters in the west to the government.

At a meeting recently in Regina of the Moxon-Canadian bond (union) of Saskatchewan, the subject was discussed and the foundation of a "propaganda" was laid. The amount called for was from $5,000 to $10,000, and "unity is power" was adopted as the device for what was styled "the fighting fund."
