THE FRANCHISE

Under the provisions of the War Time Elections Act, which was brought in to Parliament and passed by the late Borden Government, with the intention solely that it would help to have them returned to power, many Canadian citizens will be! deprived of their power to vote at the coming election. The late Government "deliberately manufactured a franchise with which it hopes to win successfully at the polls a passing victory for itself, a paramount injury to the country."

This Franchise Bill takes away from the people that right to give expression to their opinions-from people which Canada invited to come and settle within her borders, with the promise that they would receive that right which was denied them in their own country. The bulk of the immigrants arriving in Canada during the last twenty years from present enemy countries have come from those nations held by force by Austria. They are not Germans, nor yet are they Austrians, except in name. Mostly they are Bohemians, and from the Slav Provinces which after the war will in all probability not remain as part of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy.

No one can say with any regard for the truth that a Bohemian has any sympathy for Austria. Not even the latest arrival in this Western Hemisphere. Nor yet has the Slav of the other provinces of Austria. These people were invited to come to Canada. They became Canadian citizens, and their children are born British citizens. Their interests are in Canada. They have no wish to return ever to the land of their former bondage. Canada is good enough for them. But the idea of the late Borden Government was that they were not good enough for Canada. They were not good enough to be entrusted with their former voting rights.

It appears, and with reason too, that if an alien born Canadian subject is too dangerous to be permitted the expression of his political opinion at the polls, then it is time he were interned, where his dangerous proclivities may be under surthat the Dominion would not be imperilled by these fellow votes. There is no doubt either ernment brought in this War Times Elections Act taking people, they did so thinking that they were getting rid of just so many opposition votes. The safety of the Dominion would not be questioned by these foreign born residents of Canada voting, the safety of the Borden Government might be. It was a case of party before the Dominion.

Canada is said to be a self governing Dominion. Yet there are many Canadians who today are fearful of the voice of the people. They are afraid that the people might vote as they see fit. Which might not be as for their opinion. A referen- and shot at Colombo. dum on this matter would be dangerous. The people might vote it down.

will of the majority of the people or not? Are our po'tical institutions of any value adians got a vote for, if it is not to express it, as each individual voter sees fit? It was not even the wish of the late government that there should ____ be an election at this time. They would have extended their be CLEAN term of office had they got a chance, without saying a word about a Union Government. The late Government would not! have been so anxious for a Union of the parties had their term been extended. They had not shown the least anxiety on of the people.
