THE SEPARATE PEACE

The Bolshevik Government of Russia has found out at last that there exist "irreconcilable differences" between the two countries. It is now feared that these will force the discontinuance of the separate peace negotiations, now in progress between the two countries. It has taken the idealists in the Slav capital a long time to make sure that these differences did exist. So long as they remain, it is hardly likely that the two countries will make any real peace. The armistice on the Russian front was for the space of one month, and was for the ostensible purpose of conducting the negotiations, in which has now come the hitch. If that armistice is not renewed, the state of war will continue between the two countries. But whether the war will be prosecuted or not, remains with the Russians.

There is little information coming to hand as to the situation on the Russian battlefield. It is known that Germany has removed her best troops therefrom, and it is also known that a whole lot of the Russian soldiers have gone home. But in what strength their line is held, or whether their line is held at all, are things which can but be conjectured of.

It is possible, however, that the breakdown in the peace negotiations may wake up the Russian dreamers of the millennium to the need for action first. Having got over their sickness caused by their overdose of freedom, it is possible that Russia may yet provide a solid front to the common enemy of democracy and all that the new Russia stands for. It is not too much to hope for. It is not too much to expect. And if it is not too much for the Russians to accomplish, she may yet be in at the final peace negotiations, when the Emperor William and the representatives of the German people accept peace, even at the point of the bayonet.

THE GERMAN DREAD

Several of the German newspapers are exercising themselves hugely over the proposed economic boycott by the allies of the Central Empires after the war. Herr Bailin, of the Nord Deutscher Lloyd, controls the Hamburg "Freundenblatt," which is candid enough to state that the British threat cannot be put lightly aside. It says that no treaty of commerce and no treaty of peace will be able to prevent Britain from utilizing to the utmost her enormous advantages. It cannot see how Germany can avoid an economic boycott and a bitter British trade war for a period of prolonged duration.

This is apparently one of the things which the German war mind did not take into consideration. They had staked everything upon a short, sharp and successful war, in which they would have vanquished all their opponents in detail. The consideration of not winning the war, and the after consequences arising therefrom had apparently been overlooked in Germany.

What the Fremdenblatt proposes is that the German government now institute a system of worldwide trade espionage, so that Berlin will know what is going on in every market in the world. With her industries under government control and subsidized (although where the subsidy is to come from is a query yet unanswered) Germany can direct her efforts into the most productive channels and in time control the trade of the world.

The German is still ambitious.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Russians are disappointed. The Germans won't agree to their peace terms. The Bolsheviks are finding out that peace with the Germans can only be had by fighting.

A fire and an explosion destroy eleven hundred aeroplane machine guns and lots of ammunition in a military depot in Petrograd. This accident is termed "mysterious," with the Russian capital swarming with German spies and agents and prisoners of war. Some things

The Real "War Bread" must contain the entire wheat grain—not the white flour center—but every particle of gluten and mineral salts—also the outer bran coat that is so useful in keeping the bowels healthy and active. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is the real "war bread" because it is 100 per cent. whole wheat prepared in a digestible form. Contains no yeast, baking powder, seasoning, or chemicals of any kind. Food conservation begins with Shredded Wheat Biscuit for breakfast and ends with Shredded Wheat Biscuit for supper. Delicious with sliced bananas, berries, or other fruits. Made in Canada.

With the capture of German East Africa, Britain's Cape to Cairo railway will now run entirely through British territory, which beats the Kaiser's Berlin to Bagdad idea. And Bagdad won't be such a bad place to live in after a while, either, although the British soldiers who are there now haven't much to say in its favor, meantime.

With the arrival of a week's mail from the east all at once, there won't be so much time today to cuss things generally and the late city council particularly.

The German Socialists are again taking up courage. They have even been criticising the Kaiser's Foreign Secretary in front of the Great War Lord. While the can't or daren't criticise the Kaiser—lest majesty is still an offence—they have criticised his policy through his Secretary. But these German Socialists are Germans before they are Socialists, and they won't do anything rash.
