RECONSTRUCTION

A glittering programme has been brought forth by a sub-committee of the Executive of the Labor party in Great Britain regarding social reconstruction. Taken altogether, reconstruction is hardly the proper term—for the report made by this subcommittee. It has more to do with recreation than reconstruction. A vast scheme has been submitted on behalf of the new social order, which it is proposed to have in place of the present condition of things.

The reason for the submission of this programme for the future appears to be that labor has been and is being defrauded of its rights, and that the fraud has gone so far, and has struck its roots so deep that nothing but a sweeping condition of State Socialism will remedy the evil.

The universal enforcement of the national minimum wage is the "first step in the scheme of reform." This must finally involve inevitably "the democratic control of industry" before and to make such minimum wage possible. This latter in its turn must lead to "a revolution in national finance," towards the final end, which is the "surplus wealth for the common good."

This is a very far-reaching scheme, and taken all round, would doubtless be very fine for the human race, once it is in operation. But it is to be feared that there will be considerable trouble and annoyance before this final state is achieved. The principle has been applied partly already. There are several public utilities which are already administered by the government, and by the municipalities, in many cases, with good effect. Were the same principle applied all round, to everything, this scheme would be in operation. It seems that it is not expecting too much either to see this put into effect in a much larger measure in the immediate future.

What is found to be a national necessity in time of war, such as government control of industry, cannot be a bad thing in time of peace. Production is co-ordinated, and the industries are viewed from a world-wide standpoint. In our modern civilization, there are many of the businesses which have brought to a high state of perfection through private enterprise. Many of these have become in effect public utilities, without which the people would be helpless. There are the means of communication, for instance, such as railroads and steamships, and in many other businesses, through mergers, competition has been reduced to a minimum, and certain firms have practically a monopoly in their own particular lines.

With the surplus wealth, which these "public utilities" produce year by year, utilized for the common good, instead of producing a future crop of millionaires, the British Labor men can see at hand the means for the putting of their scheme into operation, in order that the majority of the people would fare better. There are but few people who are unconscious of the inequalities which are existing at the present moment in our society, and still fewer who do not wish to see them removed as far as possible, and naturally it is left to the Labor party, who are the most conscious of these inequalities, to be the most anxious for their removal.

The expediency of their proceedings is being criticised severely, even the morality of their scheme, and even after that, the methods which they advocate for its carrying out will be the matter for much controversy. This of course is only to be expected. In this world objections are the easiest thing to find in connection with any proposal. Yet it must be said for the Labor party that they have the vision, and the idealism necessary for the period of reconstruction which will be so necessary after the war. And politics without idealism may be likened to a body without a soul.

Nothing Like Internal Bathing for Constipation

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others there would be fewer Pills and Laxatives swallowed and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous troubles resulting from it.

Mrs. Cave, 841 Elery St., Victoria, B. C., writes:—"Before using the 'J. B. L. Cascade' I suffered constantly from Constipation, had frequent bilious attacks and sick headaches. Since beginning your system of Internal Bathing with the 'J. B. L. Cascade' four months ago, I have not had one attack and feel stronger and better in every way. My only regret is that I did not get a Cascade sooner."

By the proper application of nature's cure, warm water, by means of the 'J. B. L. Cascade', the lower intestines are kept free from all poisonous waste. Drugs force Nature. Internal Bathing assists her. Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, a specialist on Internal Bathing, invented and perfected the 'J. B. L. Cascade', which has done more during the past 20 years in restoring health and lessening disease than all other means combined. Ask Cyril H. Orme, druggist, cor. 3rd Ave. and 6th St., for Booklet, "Why Man of Today is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." He will also be pleased to show and explain the J. B. L. Cascade to you.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Chicago offers $15 a barrel for salt herring. The fishermen say $15 a ton would pay them handsomely for fresh herring. The difference goes to the man who does the salting and barrelling. Looks like a chance for somebody.

Quiet prevails on the Western front, and the chief trouble in the British lines is that of keeping warm. The Tommies and the Sammies will be warm enough pretty soon giving it to the Germans hot.

According to the press reports, the finishing touches are being given to the negotiations regarding the getting of the drydock busy, and for shipbuilding here. Let's hope that the negotiations come to something this time. Perhaps the scarcity of steel plates is now over.

With logging, fishing, mining and shipbuilding all booming in this part of the province, Prince Rupert should have a busy time ahead of it this summer.

A recent article in one of the Vancouver papers seemed to consider that that city is, and is going to be the only place in B. C. that will have any chance of growing as a result of its location. It may be that such a pronouncement is just a little bit premature. As the rejected suitor said, "There are others."

Furniture wanted. Any quantity. Good prices paid for complete household furnishings and all kinds of tools, men's suits, coats, etc. Phone Red 243 or call on F. M. Crosby, 715 Third Ave.
