"HIGH FINANCE"

Bones of every kind figure in the newest William Fox production in which George Walsh is starring, "High Finance." In the first place there are the bones of the extinct monsters, for which a lady with archeological intentions, is seeking. In the next place, there are several old fashioned boneheads. In the third place, there are piles of bones in the slang sense—the kind which make the world go round. Love and laughter make a sparkling comedy of this play, which will be screened this evening at the Westholme. George Walsh and Doris Pawn make an ideal combination of stars, and this play tonight is a fine one.

Then there is Billie Burke. The first episode of the great serial, "Gloria's Romance" will be again repeated this evening. All over the continent the name of Billie Burke is already famous. She is noted to be the best dresser before the screen, and none of the ladies in town will want to miss seeing her as she really is. In a serial story there are few who want to miss the opening chapter and the opportunity is tonight. There will be special music.
