THE ELECTION RESULTS.

One question is being freely asked round town and that is "How many votes of a majority would Fred Stork require to maintain his election against the votes of the soldiers?" There is considerable scepticism being voiced regarding the conduct of the Dominion election, taking it has a whole. And not being voiced locally, but in different parts of the Dominion. There is a large body of opinion here in town which is convinced, rightly or wrongly, that no matter how much of a majority had been gained for the Liberal Candidate here, the soldiers vote would just have turned out sufficient to beat it.

Election experiences of this kind are, if not common, at least numerous within the memory of this generation. There is matter for wonder to where all the soldiers who voted in the Skeena division came from. Taking into consideration those who have returned, and those who will vote no more, the numerical voting power of the remainder seems to be undiminished. Plugging, of course, is not unknown outside of Canada.

The criticism which was levelled against the War Times Election Act while it was in its progress through the House of Commons in Ottawa has been justified by events. It was a weapon which the old Borden administration armed itself with, which proved most effective. That it was neither a fair nor a honest measure was admitted, even by members of the party who brought it forward. It admitted the employment of methods comparable with those of the Bolsheviks in Petrograd. It might have been thought that Canada had attained to somewhat higher level in the conduct of her public affairs. Autocrats and tyrants usually go hand in hand, and the autocrats in Toronto and Ottawa who framed the late election have not shown themselves to be averse to tyranny when they arranged for so many of the soldiers votes being rejected.

There were so many jokers

legalised by the act of Parliament, that the ordinary voter even could see how it was possible for things to be done to the ballots. And there is still wonder where all the soldiers from the Skeena Divisions came from. The list of voters would be interesting.

A PEOPLE IN ARMS.

By force of circumstances, the German advance through Russia in the direction of Petrograd, the capital, has stopped. The Germans cannot proceed further, and apparently Berlin is content that the onward march be stayed, in the meantime. According to the press dispatches received in London from Petrograd, the man in the street in Russia, the common people have taken up arms to repel the invader. Not, either, without some form of military discipline.

It is reported that the German invading force consists of only two divisions, one of cavalry and one of infantry. Whether this force will be strong enough to maintain itself in a hostile country, and maintain its communications in face of the ever growing antipathy of the Russians for things German, even peace, and that antipathy transposed into action may have a disastrous effect upon the little German army.

Napoleon once invaded Spain, about a hundred years ago, and he also invaded Russia. On both occasions, the whole peoples of these countries rose en masse to eject the invader. He was ejected too, both countries were torn by dissension internally, but for the time being, the old difference were forgotten in face of the common danger. History has a habit of repeating itself, and it is possible that some of the self inflicted wounds of the Russian may be healed within the near future.

The young ladies of the Methodist Church Mission Band will hold an afternoon tea and sale of novelties on Wednesday night, March 13.

SOLDIERS' VOTE IN BRITAIN MAKES MORE CHANGES

Ottawa, March 1.—Cables telling result soldiers vote taken in England show that Government has gained Kings P. E. I. and one of the two seats in Queens. This increases the Government majority to 64. Word having been received that Dr. Thompson, ex-member for Yukon has received ninety overseas votes as against ten for Congdon. This, with the vote cast in North America gives Thompson a small majority.

As matter of legality, soldiers vote in the Yukon is to be settled by parliament. This seat in the foregoing calculation, has been left in the opposition column. If Dr. Thompson is considered as elected, the government majority is 66.
