

ACUTE NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

All Treatments Proved Useless Until He Tried "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

MR. JAS. S. DELGATY.

R.E. No. 4, Gilbert Plains, Man. "In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; was reduced in weight from 170 pounds to 115 pounds.

The doctors had no hope of my recovery, and every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take "Fruit-a-tives".

I began to mend almost at once; and after using this fruit medicine for 3 or 4 months, I was back to my normal state of health.

I never had such good health for twenty years as I have enjoyed the past six years. We are never without a box of "Fruit-a-tives" in the house".

ANECDOTES ABOUT SIR DOUGLAS HAIG

The present army in France is the creation of the man who for nine months fooled the most astute Boer commander in South Africa. Haig has always succeeded by staff work, and staff work in this war has saved more lives than have the tanks.

Douglas Haig has won the respect of the fighting soldier, as he has won the confidence of the thinking soldier. A very famous General who was a colleague of Haig's in the present war said of him—"He applies the virtues and the traditional vices of the Scot to the prosecution of the war. He is canny, he is cautious, he is economical to a point of niggardliness where the lives of men are concerned. He is contemptuous of uninformed criticism, and believes in God."

A man of decision himself, indecision in an officer is his bete noire.

"At what age does a General retire?" he was asked by a member of the Government.

"At the age he starts to think slowly and to doubt quickly," was his reply. "Look at Plumer. He thinks young all the time. Contrast him with —, whose mind was decrepit at forty."

He was once asked by an ex-member of the Government who was paying a visit to the front whether he preferred cavalry of infantry Generals.

"It is like asking me whether I prefer them fair or dark, short or tall," he replied. "One of the most efficient of my Generals was sitting in a business office in Canada when the war broke out."

He was referring of course to General Currie.

"Sir Douglas has the knack of thinking three months ahead," said one of his staff.

He was in London for a short visit in the autumn of 1916, so the club story goes, when a lady said to him—"When you have your big push next year I am going to send a big bunch of flowers to every field hospital in France to celebrate the event. What shall they be?"

He shook his head.

"If you send snowdrops you will know it is the early spring. If you send roses you will guess it is in the summer. Send laurels—they will be well earned."

Somebody once asked Sir Douglas Haig if he was not too cautious if he did not hesitate if there were risks. He replied, "It is not a question whether my reputation shall suffer or be enhanced. It is a question whether men are needlessly killed and maimed, whether the volume of sorrow which flows from this country to Britain shall be increased or restricted. You cannot be too safe under any circumstances, and in this war caution is not only desirable, it is one of the first principles of warfare."
