SELF RELIANCE

In a recent interview with the Minister of Lands, which we published the other day, the Hon. T. D. Pattullo is reported as pointing out to the people of the southern part of the province that "whatever helps one portion of British Columbia helps the rest of the province, and at this time, when Prince Rupert has a magnificent drydock ready for operation, the more thickly populated cities of the south should lend a hand to help the northern part."

There is no doubt that were the criminal scandal of the idleness of Prince Rupert's plant voiced by the collective voice of this province, the sound thereof might travel much further than the lone voice of this city itself. But it looks as if there is still some that very interesting period when the lower coast cities begin to take a big brotherly interest in the progress of this city.

Any progress achieved by the city of Prince Rupert in the past has been in spite of, not because of the interest taken in its development by the larger and older established towns to the south. There is no doubt that the vision of the dweller of the large cities becomes circumscribed, and chiefly by their own boundaries at that. If there is anything coming to British Columbia, Vancouver wants it, and Victoria is jealous if she doesn't get it, never thinking for a minute whether Prince Rupert needs it worse than either of them. That was the condition of affairs with the shipbuilding contracts which came to this province. With this industry in progress at this port, it must of necessity react to the advantage of the other large cities. Prince Rupert at present is dependent upon the south for the greater part of her supplies, although how long this state of affairs may continue is another matter, and the busier Prince Rupert is, so much busier are the other large centres as well.

The warning uttered by the minister that the people of the north may eventually look to the east with the business hitherto done in the south is one which might well be taken to heart in the southern latitudes, as there may be more behind the words of the Hon. T. D. Pattullo than seems apparent at the present time.

CRUEL REALITIES

The absolute control of the situation by the allies which will result at the conclusion of hostilities is the cruellest of the stern realities which the Germans and their allies have to face. All over the world for a year or two the stringent conditions brought about by these four years of warfare are not going to let up in the slightest, until the supplies of food and other essentials becomes nearer to the normal. Such supplies as there are are going to be under the control of the allies through their command of the world's shipping.

Germany before the war imported some thirty per cent of her foodstuffs from overseas, and as an industrial country had also to import all her supplies of rubber, copper, cotton, lubricants, etc. These commodities, as well as the supplies of food will be as urgently required in the allied countries, and it stands to reason that they will see to it that their own countries are supplied first. Preference must of necessity be given to the countries of the allies, and this discrimination will be exercised as an economic factor, apart altogether from any matter of vindictiveness against the late enemy.

The soil of Germany is already exhausted through the lack of fertilizer. Her herds and flocks are depleted through the scarcity of fodder, and to make these good, importation of a large quantity of fertilizer will be necessary, and her replacements of livestock must come at the same time from overseas. With similar conditions existing in the countries of the allies, the state of Germany for years after the war will continue to be that of extreme poverty. There is nothing else for it, and the German people have only themselves to blame for this state of affairs.

The prospect for Germany for many years to come, with her shipping driven off the seas, her overseas markets gone, and lacking the wherewithal to supply the needs of even her own people, is not one to encourage her rulers, even at this present time. Already discredited in the eyes of the outside world, and with her armies beaten in the field, discredited among her own people, the government of Germany is in for a bad time. The prospect ahead is one that may well give Kaiser Wilhelm cause for wishing that he were someone else.

Appendicitis Operations Not Always Necessary

Internal Bathing Relieves the Cause
Your physician will tell you that Appendicitis is an inflamed condition of the little sack called the Appendix at the lower right-hand corner of the Colon or large intestine. By cleansing this Colon with purified warm water by the "J. B. L. Cascade" this sack is cleansed and the inflammation subsides. Hundreds of operations have been avoided by using the warm water cure for Appendicitis. Mr. Jas. McLaughlin, 91 Evanston street, Winnipeg, writes:—

"I had spent over fifty dollars with doctors trying to cure Appendicitis. Finally the doctor said I must go to the hospital at once for an operation. Your advertisement interested me. I bought a 'J. B. L. Cascade,' which relieved me at once, and am now completely cured. Never felt better in my life; all pain and soreness gone, and I eat and sleep like a boy. I am grateful to Dr. Tyrrell for this wonderful health-giving invention." 95 per cent of all human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the Colon. Internal Bathing with the "J. B. L. Cascade" keeps this large intestine as free from all waste and as clean as nature demands it should be for perfect health. Ask Cyril H. Orme, Druggist, corner 3rd Ave. and 6th St., for booklet called "Why Man of Today is Only 50 Per Cent Efficient." It is free. He will also be pleased to show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you.
