GERMAN CHANCELLOR SPEAKS OF THE GREAT MISERY STILL TO COME

Amsterdam, April 6.—Dr. Georg Michaelis, former imperial chancellor, on leaving to assume his post of president of Pomerania, made an address at Berlin. He said:

"If I were ever responsible again for the government I would decline to ask a war indemnity. Rather than see our people throw itself into the abyss of materialism, which would be the case if our war expenditures were defrayed by our enemies, we must teach our people to become simple, sober and economical.

"Our time of trial will not end with the termination of the war. Our misery will continue. We must bear it without murmuring. Poverty will be our cook. We must admit we, too, are guilty for this war, not in a political sense, for the emperor tried to maintain peace to the last minute, but circumstances have brought us trials which threaten to make money the master of the day. We must save the country from a surrender to materialism."

THE MIGHTIEST EFFORT OF THE WHOLE WAR

Washington, April 6.—Renewal of the German assaults against the British and French lines in Picardy today indicated to military observers here that the Germans, having gathered strength during the lull of the last few days, might now be ready to launch their greatest effort. Some officers think the allied commanders realize that only the first phase of the gigantic battle has passed and that this probably accounts for the fact that no extensive counter movement has been undertaken as yet. It is pointed out that the previous record of the German high command argues against any possibility that it would be content with the minor strategic advantages already gained by their costly enterprise, or with the abandonment of its plans without further attempts to force apart the French and British armies. The battle of Verdun continued for months before the Germans admitted that their object was unattainable.
