POISON GAS FLOATS BACK TO GERMANY FROM BATTLEFIELD

Geneva, May 9.—The municipal authorities at Mulhausen, Alsace, have ordered all the inhabitants to procure gas masks before May 10 as a protection "against aerial gas attacks." The Lausanne Gazette says it has learned. The truth of the matter is, the newspaper adds, that owing to contrary winds, large quantities of poison gas employed by the Germans along the front are now drifting gradually toward towns along the Rhine, which already are feeling the effects of the gas.

"Doc" Evans has sold his gasoline launch to George Little, of Terrace. The boat was a new one last season, and has just completed the trip to Terrace under her own power. Harry, the engineer, returned to town by the last train, and had some experiences on the trip up river. The water was high, and the stunts pulled off in the old days of river transport were nothing to what took place on this trip. However, everything was accomplished safely. The engine, a 12-15 Sterling, did noble duty. The launch will be used for towing and other service in connection with the sawmills at Terrace.
