Change of Sentiment
In Regard to Boxing.

Before the war there was considerable feeling against professional boxing, and the game was rapidly going into disuse. There was a tendency to look upon the art of fistic self defence as more or less brutal, tending to stimulate the lower instincts in the human race. Since the war began there has been a decided change in the point of view and boxing is now looked upon as one of the means of developing the all round man, making him self confident, resourceful and at the same time giving him self command.

Sport of all kinds tends to give a boy control of himself. In boxing loss of temper is fatal. The one who is cool and watchful and who has staying power wins out. It is a great game and while it doubtless is sometimes abused it is within limits, one of the finest forms of exercise.

Geography is Most Unstable.

When the conference of representatives of the four western provinces met recently at Banff to confer on the matter of uniform text books it was decided to defer the choosing of a new geography until after the war, owing to the present mobile conditions. Any books which are now in use or which are compiled now would be out of date next year or the year after. There may not be a German Empire even after the war. Russia may be split up, and who can be sure that there may not be some more or less organic union of the Allies which would be most important. It seems almost unthinkable that, just as soon as the war is over, there will be a renewal of the commercial war which has always caused ill feeling between the nations. It has been suggested that there should be a customs union of some kind between the United States and Canada, in order to do away with the tariff wall, which at present divides the countries. The tariff is the chief obstruction on the boundary line. Do away with it and the average man would never know when he had crossed from one country to the other.

Austrian General
Compliments Air Force.

General Uzelac, chief of the Austrian Air Force, was interviewed by the Berliner Tageblatt on July 13, and naturally blew a loud trumpet in praise of the Austrian airmen. But, with the best intentions, he was only able to pay the air service he commands a back-handed compliment and, in fact, the louder he blew his own trumpet the higher the tribute to the R. A. F.

"The Austrian pilots," he said, "were considered quite first-class by the Germans themselves, although, of course, owing to their high average intelligence and general training in sports, the British had a better supply of men as regards quality."

The Austrian's "of course" is noteworthy, and the facts fully justify it. The airmen of the R. A. F. are the finest in the world and their training is planned and executed to accentuate all those native qualities which result in their notable ascendancy over the enemy aviators.

Let us pay Uzelac's service a return compliment, and congratulate him upon his Intelligence Branch which must (very properly) have emphasized to him the importance attached to sport in the R. A. F. He may even have heard of the appointment of a country cricketer as a R. A. F. sports instructor.

The truth is that airmanship, like seamanship, is native to the English speaking peoples, and that the training of the R. A. F. in work and sport, is successfully calculated to draw out the national capabilities of those who have always been the navigators of the world.

In training, thoroughness is everything and no R. A. F. pupil goes into the air until he has passed examinations in a series of interesting subjects which ensure his having a complete theoretic knowledge of the aeroplane. Even then, he goes up in a dual-control machine, with an instructor, and gains confidence and practical skill in many dual flights before he tries his first solo.

CANADA'S TRADE IS ON THE DECREASE

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—That there was a decrease of nearly $271,000,000 in the total trade of Canada for the first five months of the fiscal year, as compared with the same period in 1917, is shown by the monthly trade statement. The statement shows that Canada's trade for the first five months of the present fiscal year, which ended August 31 last, totalled $875,178,588. The decrease is largely due to the falling off in exports which this year totalled $451,846,814, as against $654,242,260 in 1917. Imports decreased $60,969,125 in the five-month period.

"The food crisis is grave and urgent, beyond possibility of exaggeration."—Sir Robert Borden

City and Town Labor
Must Save
The Food Situation

THE heart of the food production problem is labor, and the heart of the labor problem is the city dweller. City people must produce food if Canada is to do her full duty in support of our soldiers and Allies.

Men who are needed on farms must come from the cities and towns—there is no other source. The Provincial Departments of Agriculture co-operating with the Canada Food Board, can place thousands of men on good farms in this Province. They are needed at once.

Those who remain at home must also Grow Food

A War Garden will not excuse the man whose rightful place this year is on a farm. But War Garden service is needed from those who can do no more.

and Vacant Lot cultivation will leave the farmers free to grow more food for export.

Every pound of home-grown vegetables, produced on city land by city labor, will be a positive addition to the food supply. Home Garden

The vegetable garden offers an opportunity for service to men whose circumstances make it impossible for them to work on a farm, to women, to boys and girls—to city people generally.

Be a Food Producer This Year

If there is a garden or vacant lot movement in your community, associate yourself with it. If no organization exists, do what you can to interest your neighbours in the War Garden campaign. Write to your Provincial Department of Agriculture for pamphlets on gardening and additional information.
