Injects New Life Into Agricultural Society.

There is to be a meeting of the Northern British Columbia Agricultural and Industrial Association in the City Hall this evening and it is to be hoped that a large number will make it convenient to attend. It is important to make a good start and elect a board of directors that will be real workers.

There are a number of things to consider in laying down a policy for another year. Certain it is that there should be no more happy-go-lucky way of doing things such as occurred this year. For exhibitors to arrive the day before the fair and find no place to put things, no water available and everything in a turmoil may be all right for the pioneer days but as the city becomes civilized it is necessary to do better. No man would run his own business that way with any hope of success. He has to please his customers, not antagonize them. When an exhibitor comes all the way from the Queen Charlottes or from Terrace or Hazelton he should find everything ready for his accommodation. To keep women exhibitors working almost all night in order to get anything like order out of chaos is to say the least unbusiness-like.

Run Fair on Business Lines.

What the News suggests is not new nor is it original. There should be a paid business manager whose business it would be to run the fair on business lines and he should be so good a man that he would get results. The Board of Directors could then be more in the nature of an advisory committee. In saying that the fair was a failure this year is not to reflect on any person, but it is to reflect on the general policy of a lot of businessmen who would not think of running their own business in a loose way. Running a fair is a business and should be considered as such all the time.

Mutual Helpfulness Is Way to Success.

The business manager should go up the line and visit the farmers early in the year and arrange for exhibits to be sent and also arrange to have them cared for when they arrive. He should go to the islands and meet the growers there and discuss with them their needs when they arrive here. He should organize a campaign to get the local gardeners to raise garden truck for exhibition and show them the advantage of doing so. Just to give a prize after the work is done is of little value to the community. The value of an exhibition comes in only when the people are stimulated by it to grow more and better crops. If the business manager is appointed in time for the spring planting he will tell them how to do it. The exhibition must be in sight all the time and the work of the year be carried on with that end in view. If a real live man can be secured to fill the bill along these lines, and to do it without running the society into debt the success of the show next year is assured.

Prince Rupert is Natural Centre.

If Prince Rupert does not have the big exhibition of the north country some other place will do so very soon. It is up to the business houses here to see that it is kept here. Once it is established no other place can take it very easily. This is the natural centre but if the people here fail it will be the business of some other place to take it. This means more than appears on the surface. The amount of cash that a merchant takes in during the week is trivial. The sentiment of having this the big city of the north, the centre where growers congregate and to which they look as a market, all these things enter into the permanent building of a city. It is necessary to make Rupert the big father that will co-operate with and help all the smaller cities. We can help them by encouraging their growers and by purchasing their produce. They can help us by supplying our needs and by spending some of their money here. If the fair does not help the outlying districts as well as Prince Rupert it is a failure. By co-operation only can there be success.

Keep in Touch With New Residents.

Just now the Provincial Government is about to enter into a colonization scheme for filling up the vacant lands of the northern interior and the more that country builds up the harder must Prince Rupert strive to get the business which will be done with them. To keep the fair going as a real live institution and to show an interest in the people that come into that part of the country is the best way to interest them in the city. Do that and the battle for supremacy is half won.

"The food crisis is grave and urgent, beyond possibility of exaggeration."—Sir Robert Borden

City and Town Labor Must Save The Food Situation

THE heart of the food production problem is labor, and the heart of the labor problem is the city dweller. City people must produce food if Canada is to do her full duty in support of our soldiers and Allies.

Men who are needed on farms must come from the cities and towns—there is no other source. The Provincial Departments of Agriculture co-operating with the Canada Food Board, can place thousands of men on good farms in this Province. They are needed at once.

Those who remain at home must also Grow Food

A War Garden will not excuse the man whose rightful place this year is on a farm. But War Garden service is needed from those who can do no more.

Every pound of home-grown vegetables, produced on city land by city labor, will be a positive addition to the food supply. Home Garden and Vacant Lot cultivation will leave the farmers free to grow more food for export.

The vegetable garden offers an opportunity for service to men whose circumstances make it impossible for them to work on a farm, to women, to boys and girls—to city people generally.

Be a Food Producer This Year

If there is a garden or vacant lot movement in your community, associate yourself with it. If no organization exists, do what you can to interest your neighbours in the War Garden campaign. Write to your Provincial Department of Agriculture for pamphlets on gardening and additional information.
