

MAD EXPLOIT OF A
DARING COUNTRY GIRL

Constance Talmadge comes to the Westholme tonight in "The Studio Girl" picturing the mad exploit of a daring young country girl who falls in love with an artist and hides in his automobile to escape marriage with a country youth she does not love.

There are at least two miracles in this story. One of them is that the country girl does not come to grief, for she took grave chances, and another is that the artist-hero really did not want to run off with the girl at all. It is worth going a long way to see a photoplay in which an artist-hero has no ulterior motives. The events which transpire in this story have a touch of the risqué.

but the situations are handled with such delicacy and charm that there can be no offense.

Constance Talmadge is at her best in this offering. She will be remembered as the actress who carried off that striking bit of feminine elan as the mountain girl in "Intolerance." Her work in this, particularly in the closing reels, is just as pleasing. Earle Foxe is proficient as the artist; Johnny Hines is amusing as Obediah, and Gertrude Norman and Isabel O'Madigan do well as the maiden aunts.

Some of the humor of this has the Paul West flavor, and to him, as well as the director, Charles Giblyn, is due much credit.

RAISING MONEY FOR PATRIOTIC PURPOSES

Miss Johnston is keeping up her good work of raising money for patriotic purposes. Mr. Martin, a mining man, presented her with a pair of rainbow socks knitted by an Indian girl and offered to take five dollars' worth of tickets if she would raffle them. She did so and raised $47 on the last trip south, the winner donating the socks which will be raffled some day again at the Red Cross hut. The money from the first raffle has been presented to the Ladies Auxiliary to the War Veterans Association.

Miss Johnston is also busy raffling a fine table cover for the Soldiers' Field Comfort fund. It was donated by Mrs. McInnes, wife of the late ex-Lieut.-Governor of the Province, and the funds will be handled by the Triple Entente Chapter of the I.O.D.E. in Vancouver.

Not only has the city been selling lots, but the firm of McCaffery, Gibbons & Doyle have been busy. In one week they disposed of no less than thirteen city lots, mostly low priced property in Section 7. There were two lots on Fraser Street, however, which fetched $1,500. Nearly all were sold to local buyers.

Local News Notes

The Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council meets tonight at 8 at Carpenters' Hall.

In the absence of Mayor McClymont, Alderman Dybhavn last night was chosen as acting mayor, the city clerk calling the meeting to order.

The Great War Veterans Association is making preparations for a big dance on Friday, Nov. 1, the proceeds in aid of Soldiers' obacco fund.

A report of the Board of Works in regard to the appointment of the Sanitary Inspector and also a letter from R. E. Walker were not read to the Council last night but held over until the next meeting.

Miss Florence Swanson of Anox returned a few days ago from a round trip to Alaska on the Princess Sophia. She expects to return home on Wednesday and in the meantime is staying at the Hotel Prince Rupert.

The sale of two lots in Section Two were formally confirmed at the City Council meeting last night. Lot 11, Block 6, was sold to Annie N. Killas and J. N. Killas for $393; while lot 48, Block 3, was sold to Jas. N. Killas for $146.

Prince Rupert people are likely to suffer very considerably. Something has happened which will prove a great hardship. Two cars of beef have failed to arrive and for at least a day and perhaps more there will be no sirloin steak or rump roast.

Tenders were ordered to be called for repairs to the garbage wharf, at the meeting of the City Council last night. An offer to do the work for $550 had been received from Mr. Meuse but it was considered that to let the job without calling for tenders would be contrary to the principal adopted by the Council.

PRINCE JOHN WILL
DOCK IN THE SOUTH

On the arrival of the G.T.P. steamer Prince John in Vancouver tomorrow, and after the discharging of her cargo, she will be placed in drydock there for examination. The "John" touched bottom at Christie Pass on her way north last week. She grounded on a falling tide, and an examination of her hull will be made to ascertain what damage has been received. The Prince John left here on Monday morning and is due in Vancouver early tomorrow. She has touched bottom twice since she was last in drydock and while the damage the ship received may not amount to much in either instance, whatever it is will be ascertained and rectified. It is not known meantime whether the steamer will miss a trip or not, and every endeavor will be made to allow the vessel to keep up her schedule.

NOTICE is hereby given that the Sale of Lands to be held on the twenty-fourth day of October next upon which delinquent taxes are due has been postponed so far as lands in the Prince Rupert Assessment District are concerned and that on the 25th day of November following a sale will be held of all such lands in the said Assessment District.

CHEQUE CASE IS ADJOURNED

Accused Came to Town to Have Teeth Fixed But Found
Liquor and Got into Trouble.

JUDGE YOUNG ASKS
FOR FURTHER EVIDENCE

"I am not going to dispose of this case, if it takes a hundred years," exclaimed Judge Young, sitting in the County Court this morning, "until the matter has been thoroughly sifted. I cannot dispose of criminal cases in any such slipshod manner. Some effort ought to have been made to find out who this J. C. Martin is, who drew this cheque, or S. Hamilton, who endorsed it. And the onus lies equally with the prosecution as with the defence."

This remark closed the hearing of the case against H. Durade, who appeared before the judge this morning charged with passing a worthless cheque, on a Chinese restaurateur of Second Avenue. The prosecution was in the hands of H. Young, of the firm of Fisher & Wharton, while L. W. Patmore appeared for the accused.

Cheque Identified.

F. A. Saunders, of the Royal Bank, identified the cheque, and told of its being presented after hours by the Chinaman. Kwong San Chong told how he had given an advance payment of $15 on the cheque and on going to the bank found that there was no account there.

The accused, in the witness box, told of his having come to town from Alice Arm, where he was earning $160 a month as a cook in the camps, to have his teeth fixed. He had about a month's wages on him on his arrival here, but instead of having his teeth fixed as he intended he spent the time otherwise, as after cashing this cheque which he got from Hamilton over a week after he had been in town, he had only about $4 left.

A Second Bottle.

Accused had known Hamilton since April and had apparently met this same man every time he came to town. The day he cashed Hamilton's cheque he had a bottle and Hamilton had a bottle, and after that was finished, they were able to club together to send out for another bottle, which, according to the testimony given, the waiter in the Chinese restaurant brought.

"Drinking seems to be your chief occupation when you are here," remarked Judge Young, "drinking in a prohibition town." "Did you get your teeth fixed?" asked the prosecution. Witness sadly shook his head. "He went on a toot," interjected Mr. Patmore.

"Write your name here, requested the judge, handing the prisoner a sheet of paper. "Write J. C. Martin's name, write S. Hamilton's name. Write thirty-five."

After this was done the handwriting was compared with the cheque and handed to counsel for comparison. Points of similarity were seen and disputed.

Asked where Hamilton was now the accused said he did not know. "Did you make any effort to restore the $15 to the Chinaman?" asked the judge. "I never had a chance," replied the prisoner. "I told him if he would wait for half an hour I would get right after the thing, but I was locked up, and have been ever since."

Hamilton, who is reputed to be a fisherman, has not turned up so far, and he said he worked for J. C. Martin, who gave him the cheque.

No One Knows.

No one in court, however, knew Martin, and no one except the accused knew Hamilton. "It is just possible," remarked Mr. Patmore, "that Martin has drawn the cheque on the right bank, but on the wrong branch. It is numbered 161, and seems to be a bona-fide cheque."

The Court agreed, but inquired what had been done to find out who or what manner of man Martin was. Judge Young was not satisfied that everything had been done to bring out all the facts of the case. "Sufficient information is not before the Court," he said. His Honor held that if the accused were innocent, his have this matter gone into further story was a very simple one, but ther, and so adjourned the case, on the other hand, were he not, to permit counsel to dig up more it was an equally simple matter information.
