Value of Night School
Not Properly Estimated.

The value of a night school to a community is often not understood. Very many boys and girls leave school before they have learned enough of the rudiments of reading, writing and arithmetic to get through life without being handicapped. They do not like to give up their work and return to school and it is either a case of going without or of attending night school.

There are many young men and women who would like to fit themselves for more skilled work and one way of doing that is to attend night school classes. Engineering is a popular subject now with a great many. Engineers will be in demand in the future and it is a useful profession.

The Provincial Government is trying to aid the night school movement as much as possible and Mr. Kyle who is an enthusiast along technical education lines was here yesterday and is acting for them in trying to induce all school boards to take the matter up.

Close Relation of Material and Spiritual.

Bishop Du Vernet writes interestingly on the relation of the spiritual, the mental and the physical. He is a deep student of mental and spiritual matters and when he visits the big cities to the south his addresses along these lines are much appreciated. Only a few months back he gave a course of addresses at Victoria which were reported in the newspapers and read eagerly by many. There is a tendency to study along these lines everywhere and librarians say that books on mental and spiritual subjects are much in demand.

Road to Berlin Lies Before Us.

(Contributed).

If there is one trait of the English-speaking race, that has been predominant throughout the war, it is optimism. Realizing the military strength of our opponents, we were face to face with a formidable task in organizing and equipping armies for service overseas. When the Teutons entered the war they well knew that our grand sea fleet would be engaged as they had been for years in keeping the enemy fleet "bottled up," and in clearing the sea of raiders. The struggle for supremacy was to take place on the shores of a country removed from our defences and it would be necessary to move our armies and supplies to foreign soil.

With her network of railways running into France, Belgium and wherever it became necessary to move large bodies of troops and munitions, Germany had every advantage. Her armies were prepared to the last detail, and they moved forward without the least doubt that they would carry everything before them. Victory after victory followed their advance, but we eventually halted their forces and held them until our small forces grew into a defensive force able to turn the tide of war in the opposite direction.

After four years of conflict we may feel satisfied, as a nation, with the work accomplished. Our army of 8,000,000 British soldiers is an answer to the German contention that we "would be an insignificant force, incapable of accomplishing anything, on land. Our navy, the largest and most powerful in the world, with armies scattered over Russia, Serbia, Macedonia, South Africa, Turkey, Italy, Siberia and other parts of Europe and Asia, our main forces are now knocking at the door of Germany, determined to free the world of autocracy and militarism.

Have we not reason to be optimistic? Four years of death, rapine and destruction were imposed on our allies by a nation pampered in war and built up in the "divine" belief that peace is a plaything to be cast aside at the behest of men whose sole ambition was the leadership of millions of fellow creatures over the ruins of homes and firesides.

With their backs to the wall, we now have the opportunity to view the stamina of armies useful only when attacking, and sure of victory. It is well for the Teutons to understand that, at no time, did the French and Belgians ask for quarter. Their cry was similar to that of MacBeth, in the famous passage from Shakespeare "Lay on MacDuff, and d—d be he who cries enough." Hand to hand, and foot to foot, the allies have fought for the freedom of all mankind. The end of the struggle may be delayed, but the road to Berlin now lies before us and there, when the Teutons regain their sanity, will clear and concise terms be laid down that shall for all time put an end to autocracy and militarism.

THE ALTAR OF HUMANITY

The Altar of Humanity! On that the lives, the hopes, the happiness, of millions have been offered in this war. Here in Canada, 3,000 miles from the war's fierce flame—that flame which has scorched and seared and devoured so many of our bravest, our brightest and our best—what are WE offering on that Altar? What can we, what should we, offer on it?

At least we can do more than many of us are doing, forego more than many of us are foregoing. Too many of us, by far, are going our ways just as though no war were on—as though the Altar of Humanity asked no sacrifice from us.

But it does—and we must make it or be forever shamed. It asks of us the sacrifice—small enough it is—of ease, pleasure, luxury, extravagance.

What are YOU doing about it all? With the world in travail, you must cease pleasuring—cease from much of pleasure, save in sternest self-denial. Live sparingly, simply, savingly. So only can you live nobly. The reward will come. Victory!

"I AM assured that my people will respond to every call necessary to the success of our cause—with the same indomitable ardour and devotion that have filled me with pride and gratitude since the war began."

HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE

OUR soldiers must be fed; the people at home must be fed. And—in spite of Germany's murderous campaign to cut off the Allies' Food supply, by sinking every ship on the High Seas—an ample and unfailing flow of food to England and France must be maintained.
