Commanding the steamer Ven... when she arrived from the... last night was Capt. A. E. Dickson, formerly skipper of the... He has recently returned from overseas where he had some interesting experiences. Capt. Dickson arrived in England a year ago last spring, having enlisted in the Inland Water Transport Service. He did not do exactly inland water work to which he was sent to Dover to engage in towing barges of ammunition and supplies across to Dunkirk and Calais. Sometimes he operated out of Dover and sometimes out of Ramsgate. One of the exciting experiences Capt. Dickson had was being bombed from aeroplanes. At the same time it lent zest to the job to have missiles dropped around the neighborhood and reminded the captain that he was really in the war. Curiously enough during the last months that Captain Dickson was engaged in the work he never saw a submarine in action. Three were driven ashore in the neighborhood where he was, but they did not seem to bother about such things as barges. They preferred to lie in wait for hospital ships. That was what one of them was doing when caught. The captain saw it on the shore, but none ever bothered him. The supplies which were towed across to Dunkirk and the other

There is a chance that this year instead of people receiving pairs of gloves that do not fit, or ties the colors of which scandalize the neighborhood, the Christmas presents will take the form of printed sheets of paper suitably inscribed which will take the form of printed according to the inclination of the donor. Bonds for Christmas presents are said to be "quite the thing this year."

Every year, dress fabrics are becoming sheerer and sheerer—the colors more dainty. The ordeal of trusting the delicate garments to "soap and water", however, is done away with by the use of Lux.

You may feel quite free to buy the daintiest blouse or underwear your purse can afford—without a bit of worry about the washing of them. You keep them fresh and new the Lux way—simply dipping them up and down in the creamy, copious Lux suds with never a bit of rubbing to injure them.

Lux won't hurt anything that pure water itself may touch.
