SHIPBUILDING NEWS ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE

People Dubious After Previous Disappointment—Short History of Negotiations Leading to Final Success.

G. T. P. ACTIVITY UNDER LATEST MANAGEMENT

The definite information that ships are to be built in Prince Rupert as conveyed through the medium of the Daily News Saturday was received much in the same way as the final peace report. There had been previous disappointments and naturally the people were a little inclined to be dubious.

The Prince Rupert floating drydock and shipbuilding plant was a part of a comprehensive scheme of the late Charles M. Hays, who, together with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was largely responsible for the All Red Line known as the National Transcontinental and G. T. P.

Planned Big Things.

Insofar as Prince Rupert is concerned the late Mr. Hays had planned many big things, including a magnificent hotel, splendid rail and ocean terminals, grain elevators and connecting transportation lines. His tragic death with the sinking of the Titanic and the exit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier from power on the issue of reciprocity, changed everything. It looked for a time almost as if Prince Rupert would be only a shadow of what was planned. Of all the plans laid out so carefully that for the drydock and shipbuilding plant was the only one with which progress was made and it was about completed on the outbreak of war.

Finest of Kind.

The floating dock was, and possibly is yet, the largest of its kind on the Pacific coast, and the shipbuilding plant one of the best equipped.

When the call for ships came the citizens of Prince Rupert believed that the local plant would be among the first put to use, but they were doomed to disappointment, and four years of idleness passed before the plant became known as Canada's greatest slacker.

That adverse influences were at work at Ottawa every citizen is convinced, and that there was lack of patriotism in permitting the plant to lie idle while new ones were being constructed is self evident.

New Management.

When the management of the Grand Trunk Pacific passed into the hands of Howard Kelly and the vice-presidency and general management into the hands of W. P. Hinton, the drybones began to stir. An active and incessant endeavor was made by the new officials to put the plant at Prince Rupert into use. One difficulty after another was overcome—difficulties which never should have been permitted to exist, until Mr. Mullen of the Mullen Construction Company came to Prince Rupert in June last with Mr. Hinton to look over the shipbuilding situation.

On his return to the east Mr. Mullen showed faith in the possibilities of the port by accepting a lease of the plant for ten years. Hopes of the citizens ran high, only to be strangled by what seemed interminable delay, and to be finally almost quenched by word received three weeks ago that the Dominion Government was standing in the way of permitting steel construction here for foreign registry.

Official Action.

When that word came Mayor McClymont and President Wallace of the Board of Trade both realizing that immediate action was necessary, called together a few representative citizens on the same evening that the telegram was received and this group decided that a delegation must go to Ottawa, and the City Council backed the mayor up in his stand. Hon. T. D. Pattullo was wired to the effect that the citizens expected him to go, and at great inconvenience to himself and the upsetting of other plans, took the train immediately to the east. Alex. Manson, M. P. P., and J. H. Pillsbury were the local representatives. They went at considerable personal sacrifice and at a time when it was not easy to leave home in the face of an epidemic such as had never before been known here.

Prospects Very Bright.

The result of the representations at Ottawa are well known. Although keels are not yet laid, it seems much more certain than at any time heretofore that the plant will at last be put in operation for the benefit of Canada and this young port.

As recorded last week the wood-working plant has been leased to F. L. Buckley, who in a statement made to The News just before leaving for Vancouver said that he intended to use it for a cutting up plant for a box factory, and for a coöperage and general wood-working establishment. He will, it is understood, provide the finishings for the steel ships which are to be built by the Mullen Construction Company.

FINAL CLEAN UP IS BEING MADE OF "FLU"

At the General Hospital within the last two days a large number of influenza patients have been discharged and others will follow each day until by the end of the week it is expected that the last will be seen of the plague which has caused such devastation here. The fine weather, bright prospects and freedom from dread of infection is having a good effect on business conditions.
