SEA LION HIDE FOR LEATHER

Proposal to Use Skins of Big Ocean Mammals for Shoes and Gloves.

FERTILIZER ALSO FROM CARCASSES

A bluebook containing an account of the investigations into the sea lion on this coast has just been issued by the Dominion Government. The report in part says: "From evidence of manufacturers and sea-lion hunters the suggestion was conveyed to the commissioners that there was an economic and commercial value in sea-lion hides, whiskers and carcasses. Under the bounty system the whole carcass of a sea-lion, with the exception of the muzzle, is disregarded, thrown into the sea, or left on the rookeries or hauling-out grounds to putrify, so far as any effort is made by the Government to utilize it. Much time was spent and many persons interviewed in obtaining definite information as to the feasibility of utilizing sea-lion carcasses for commercial purposes, with the happy result, however, of its being demonstrated that the hide of a sea-lion is eminently suitable for tanning into leather, from which durable and serviceable gloves and boots today are being made; that the whiskers have a value of 25 cents a piece to Orientals; and that the flesh can be rendered into oil and guano, for which a good market is ever available.

"While it was impossible, owing to the short time at the disposal of the commissioners, to investigate this side of the problem in an exhaustive manner, on account of the great distances from Vancouver and Victoria to San Francisco and New York, where comprehensive and accurate corroboration of the commercial uses of the carcasses of sea-lions can be obtained, yet sufficient evidence was discovered to point to the conclusion that in killing sea-lions the economic value of their entire carcasses should be taken into consideration, so that, if it were found possible and feasible, then the monetary returns from the disposal of the carcasses in the form of hides, whiskers, oil, and guano would at least equal and possibly, with care, exceed the amount of the bounty offered by the Government. It is in the mind of the commissioners that if such a consummation could be reached, a real service to industry and the country could be rendered. It is in this direction that the commissioners desire to pursue their inquiries during the coming year.

"What turn that inquiry might take is indicated by the fact that W. F. Robinson, president of the Robinson Fisheries Company, manufacturers, producers and distributors of fish oil and fish fertilizer, Anacortes, Washington, writing to the commission under date of August 11, 1915, says: 'We have never yet had the carcasses of sea-lions to use in our fertilizer plant, but could do so if we had them, as we understand they grow to a very large size. Unless the expense of obtaining the sea-lions is too great, or our works are not near the source of production, we believe they could be handled to advantage.'

Every Dog Has His Day

We have been living under abnormal conditions for some time. For three long years the cur that has successfully fought the normal value of the dollar which we use as a medium of exchange has succeeded in reducing its value to that of a 50c piece in normal times. Shall its value go still lower? Or in other words so as not to forget the heading of this ad, has this dog had his day? We think so. But we do not think that he will give up the advantage he has gained during the past three years without a struggle. It may take another three years to accomplish his defeat. But these are the days of reconstruction, so it is quite fitting that we should recognize the same by holding a reconstruction sale. The special prices which are listed below should convince anyone that the buying power of the dollar will have commenced to expand at last, and will also serve to prove the reliability of the old saying that "Every dog has his day."
