For the Happy New Year.

It is with best wishes for the Happy New Year that we greet our readers today. That 1919 will be a better year than 1918 or the three preceding that, there is every hope to believe, especially for those citizens of Prince Rupert. There is a greater possibility of the realization of that Hope Deferred since 1914 now than ever. With peace, and the prospects of plenty ahead of us, the prospect is cheerful.

If We Can't Lead, Then Follow.

A very welcome New Year's Gift was made to the people of Vancouver by the B. C. Electric Company there, in the shape of a reduction of twenty-five per cent. in the domestic rate for electric energy. And the B. C. Electric knows what it is doing, too. By lowering the rate per kilowatt hour, it is going to increase the consumption of juice wonderfully, and the largest production is naturally the cheapest. There is no doubt that for domestic purposes electric energy will be utilized in the near future to a very much greater extent. As the appliances become more perfect, their range of usefulness will increase. Take for instance, the housewife, who has once used an electric iron. Will she ever want to go back to the old fashion? Never, you may be sure. And so in every instance. In other cities, where a large consumption of gas was necessary to enable the cheapest production, a campaign of education was undertaken among all classes. Gas stoves of various patterns were provided for the citizens by the city at nominal rents, in order to increase the consumption. It worked, too, and to this day the rate is the lowest known. The same thing would apply here. Lower the rate, increase the consumption, and make profits. If private ownership, such as the B. C. Electric, which strives to make profits over costs, can do this, our municipally owned plant, which is expected to break even, should do it easier.

Which It Is Necessary To Repeat.

One thing we find it necessary to repeat, and that is a remark which we passed on Saturday to the effect that the candidate who states that if elected, a city coal yard will follow his election, is talking through his hat, and he knows it. To get the Government to amend the Municipal Act is a different thing altogether. And the facts might as well be faced now as after the 16th of January, when it may be found that impossible promises cannot be fulfilled. In fact, there ought to be a penalty placed on pre-election promises, and then the electorate may have more truthful statements placed before them at election times. One or two hard boiled facts are worth reams of vapid theorizing. And one fact is that Prince Rupert will not get the power to open up a civic coal yard, nor to compete in any other business for that matter, with private citizens, without the same power being granted to every municipality in the province. And until there is a majority of municipalities requesting such legislation in this democracy, the will of the majority rules. The present City Council understood full well months ago just what the chances were of having the Municipal Act opened up for this purpose. They knew how unlikely such a proceeding was, and so does everyone who keeps in touch with current events. And besides, just imagine the provincial government "willingly granting" a thing simply because the Empire advocated it! C'est pour rire.

In the Good Time Coming.

Undoubtedly in the hearts of many there is a great hope of conscription of everything, some day; when human selfishness, if not bred out of the race, will be so controlled (by government) that it will work no hardship on anyone. In these days, the government will own everything, and will guarantee a living and a certain living to everyone. All will have to work, certainly, but at the work best liked, which becomes no labor. In the process of the evolution of this happy state, the various industries will be taken over gradually one by one, and presumably the economic laws which govern our present condition will be overcome. Business men then, instead of slaving to make profits will worry how to give profits to the other fellow. But human nature has to rise to a very much higher plane, before this consummation is possible. That's Socialism, which many hope for, and others scorn. But we're not there yet.

can be washed over and over again with Lux and still retain the delightful charm of freshness and newness. Very desirable, this, in war time! Lux is so gentle in its cleansing power that it cannot harm the most delicate fabric.

How to wash a silk garment

Use a tablespoonful of Lux to a gallon of water. Dissolve in boiling or very hot water and whisk into a thick, creamy lather. Add cold water until luke warm. Dip your garment through the Lux suds many times. Work it about, gently squeezing the suds through the soiled parts but do not rub! Rinse in three waters—clear and also luke warm. Press the water out—but do not wring. Dry in the shade and when nearly dry press on the wrong side with a warm iron—never a hot one. Press creases from side to side and stretch a very little as you press. They will look just like new!
