Canadian Lumber Going to Europe.

The telegraph brought good news Monday when it ticked out the message telling of the decision of the British Timber Controller to purchase a billion feet of lumber in Canada, part of which will be supplied by British Columbia. Curiously enough the despatch was published on the same day as the delayed interview with Hon. T. D. Pattullo, who told of the efforts taken by his department to secure the orders.

When spread throughout Canada the billion feet will not give many millions to each district, but the order must be looked upon only as a starter. If it is filled satisfactorily there will doubtless be others to follow. In this neighborhood there are enough logs in the water and on the ground to fill one-tenth of the order, and it is hardly to be expected that as much as a tenth will be allotted here. No matter how many million feet are ordered it will be a decided improvement on the present condition. As the Imperial Munitions Board owns the logs in this district it is just possible that we may get preferred treatment.

Great Man Died At Oyster Bay.

The passing of Roosevelt is a world calamity. The ex-president was a great man. He was not always practical, he was not always sane, he was not always reasonable, but he was always courageous and honest and candid and when he spoke he was heard if not heeded. It was when he was least practical that we liked him the best. It was when he was mad that he towered above his fellows.

Roosevelt was one of the few vice-presidents who ever amounted to anything. Usually the sure road to shelve a politician was to make him vice-president of the United States. The people of the country seldom remember who the vice-president is. Fate, however, ordained that Roosevelt should not be smothered. McKinley was shot by an assassin and Roosevelt took up the presidential work and did it so well that at the next election he was returned. He was a man who brandished the big stick and was spectacular in his manner and method. There was, however, more than bluff and talk in his makeup. He was a manly type such as the ordinary Britisher loves. He was fond of the great outdoors, was keen on sport, as a soldier he was a great success and people always knew where to find him. His influence on the life of the Republic and on the world generally was for good.

Ireland Still in The Limelight.

Ireland is still in the limelight. She has been there for the past two generations and seems destined to continue for some time to occupy the stage. What will be the outcome no one seems in a position to say. It is certain that, if she will, she can have home rule, but whether Great Britain will grant her complete independence is another matter. It is largely a matter of sentiment. It would be economy for Britain to cast her off, for she has been a continuous bill of expense. She has not paid her share of taxation for many a year. That she should be allowed to work out her own salvation in her own way might be the best thing to do. Had she been granted home rule many years ago there would probably have been no trouble now.

Your Dainty Things

can be washed over and over again with Lux and still retain the delightful charm of freshness and newness. Very desirable, this, in war time! Lux is so gentle in its cleansing power that it cannot harm the most delicate fabric.

How to wash a silk garment

Use a tablespoonful of Lux to a gallon of water. Dissolve in boiling or very hot water and whisk into a thick, creamy lather. Add cold water until luke warm. Dip your garment through the Lux suds many times. Work it about, gently squeezing the suds through the soiled parts but do not rub! Rinse in three waters—clear and also luke warm. Press the water out—but do not wring. Dry in the shade and when nearly dry press on the wrong side with a warm iron—never a hot one. Press creases from side to side and stretch a very little as you press. They will look just like new!
