Revive Interest In Part Singing

The Prince Rupert Musical Society has been trying to revive interest in part singing and in music generally and has done some excellent work. A large choir of mixed voices under the leadership of J. E. Davey has been practising for some time past and tonight is to give its first concert.

Strike Epidemic Has Broken Out.

People who are given to the use of alcohol often have to go off on a spree at various intervals, and the longer they abstain the longer the spree they take. The workmen of the old country have been holding back for a number of years, restrained by the idea of winning the war.

It is hoped that wise counsels will prevail in labor ranks and that the strikes will not be of long duration. There is now a great opportunity for the Empire to build up its industries, but if the men are going to strike, the opportunity will be lost.

National Future Of Trades Unionism.

Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, M. P., in a recent article in the Glasgow Herald discussing the future of Trades Unionism says: "I believe that we shall never reach a stage when there will not be higher things at which to aim, and that it is inevitable that the next move on the part of labor will involve encroachment in the sphere of management and control."

"In July, 1917, the Whitley Report was issued. It recommended the setting up, by voluntary co-operation, in well-organized trades of Joint Standing Industrial Councils, representative of employers and employed through their respective organizations. These councils are to act as industrial parliaments, and to deal with conditions of employment, methods of fixing, paying, and readjusting wages; methods of negotiation, security of earnings and employment, technical education, research and invention, legislation affecting the industry, and means for securing to the workpeople a greater share in the control of industry."
