MARKET NEEDED

Prince Rupert would be all right if there was a market for the products of the district. This year so far there has been very little market for halibut and had it not been for ger, stiles, Antonelli, B. Skattebol, the cold storage company halibut would have had to be Dingwell, D. Stalker, Jackson. dumped. As it was they have been taken at a low price, the buyers gambling on the possibility of a turnover.

What applies to halibut has also applied to the low! grades of salmon. The fish are all right but they cannot son. be sold this year. Lumber, poles and many minerals have also been a drug on the market with the result that men Island mining man, arrived in the have been idle and producers have lost a great deal of city yesterday afternoon and is a money. The reflex of this has hit the local merchants with guest at the Savoy Hotel.

While Ottawa is trying to secure Empire markets for Canadian products and we are with them in their endeavors and will back Mr. Bennett to the limit in his efforts. what we really need here is an improvement in the conditions in the Eastern States where they buy our halibut. Once that market revives, the fishermen will make money and so will the dealers and prosperity will return to Prince Rupert. In the meantime everyone is carrying on in the best manner possible.

OUR SPLENDID CHILDREN

One thing the depression has not injured is our splendid children. In many cases these youngsters have been benefitted by a return to plainer foods and saner amusements. If the worst came to the worst many people could yet cut their living expenses in half and not suffer in the least except for a little mental protest.

Prince Rupert children compare favorably with those of other places, mentally and physically. As we see them grow up and develop into manhood and womanhood they are a delight. They have all the vigor that can come only as a result of enjoyment of the north country climate.

The Daily News has given the people here first information in regard to some of their successes in entrance to high school examinations, in Toronto Conservatory of Music examinations and in matriculation passes. We congratulate these winners on their success and hope to see more of them each year.
