Where is England

At Peace Conference?

The St. George's Society has discovered an interesting fact that in spite of the fact that the greater part of the fighting during the war was done by Englishmen, there is not a real Englishman sitting in the Peace Conference. Lord Milner is the only one who goes by that name and he is of German grandparentage on one side, was born in Germany, and his father lived most of his active life in Germany. He has many German cousins and can hardly be looked upon as an Englishman in its best sense. Of the other members of the conference there is one Welshman, Mr. Lloyd George; one Scottish Canadian, Mr. Bonar Law; one Jew, Mr. Reading; four Scotsmen, Mr. Balfour, Sir Eric Geddes, Marshal Haig, and Admiral Wemyss; one Englishman, Lord Milner.

"There is no such thing as a second rate man. Every man is first rate in 'his own job.' To select the right man for the right job should be the aim of every employment bureau.

The above statement is issued from the Ottawa branch of the Ontario Government Employment Bureau, a department run along strictly business lines, one that is bent upon producing results. Superintendent Frank Crean is out to get the immediate and direct attention and co-operation of all employers.

"The kind of man we all want, when you come to think of it," he says, "is the one described by Harry Lauder:

'I like a man that is a man,

'A man that's straight and square,

'A sort of man who will and can

'At all times do his share.'

"We have such men on our list, lots of them, all trades, all callings. Have you any jobs to offer? When a man has a job he has a chance."

Fishermen Take Many Great Risks.

The fishermen who ply out of this port are a hardy people. They brave the rigors of the northern seas at a time when most people are working in pleasant offices or are safely tucked in their cosy beds. If they earn big money they deserve it.

The story of the troubles which the King and Winge underwent and which was published in this paper yesterday gives an insight into the hardships which these men endure. It is a story of pluck and endurance which is worthy of perusal by everyone.

Those who daintily pick over their halibut steak in the fashionable restaurants of New York and turn up their noses at it if it has not just the right flavor or is not cooked to a turn, little remember how it is caught or the dangers which the men undergo who catch it. The story of the halibut fisheries yet remains to be written. It has great possibilities, but it must be written by one who has had the actual experience.

City Council Would Revert.

Nearly all city councils move in circles. They decide to do things in a certain way in order to improve and then they find there are difficulties of which they did not know. The next council reverts to the old method and so the changes go.

The Prince Rupert council for some years past have placed the power of engaging subordinate employees with the heads of departments. That was to avoid any suspicion of Tammany rule. Now the present council wants to get back to the methods of appointment by the members of the Council.

The News knows nothing of the ability of the officials nor of the wisdom of their choice in recent appointments. We do know, however, that appointments are usually better made by the permanent officials than by members of the council and that the system is not liable to so many abuses. With eight or nine men all pulling to have their favorites appointed, usually the most incapable employee gets the job.

Statement Was Not Correct.

Some time ago the Daily News stated as a result of information received, that the Dolly Varden Railway was constructed anything but economically and not according to specifications. This seems to have been incorrect and The News regrets having published the statement. The News has no personal knowledge of the conditions, but was informed that they were as stated.
