LIBERALS LOOK FOR A LEADER

Mackenzie King Seems to Be the Favorite Just Now With the House Leader as Second Choice.

Ottawa, March 13.—The question of permanent leadership of the Liberal party is still being discussed here. D. D. Mackenzie, the temporary House leader, is favored by many, but there are probably more than a majority of the Liberal members who would like to see Mackenzie King at the head of the party. Unfortunately King is not in the House and that is against him. He seems to be the one man who can unite all sections of the party and at the same time inspire them with hope for the future.

There is nothing spectacular about Mackenzie, whereas King, who is the direct descendant of the great rebel, William Lyon Mackenzie, is an able speaker and had much in common with the late leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

F. S. GADSBY WRITES OF LIBERAL LEADER

D. D. Mackenzie Was Choice of Quebec Men; May be Permanent Leader.

The empty chair has had this much influence—it has made the man who sat next, Sir Wilfrid's deskmate, Daniel Donald Mackenzie, of Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, leader for the session. Mackenzie, a granite-ribbed Grit, a Presbyterian, a pawky Scot, well seasoned with Biblical humor, holds the place for the time being and enjoys the emoluments of the old chief, says F. S. Gadsby in the Saturday Night. It was his through-thick-and-thin loyalty to Laurier that landed him the job. The young lions from Quebec gave him the casting vote because he had never hurled a stone at Sir Wilfrid. D. D. is what the "Globe" calls a bonny fighter, but as canny fighting is needed this session he has an advisory committee to bid him be cautious when he would pursue the Philistines too far. It is not off the cards that Mackenzie may become permanent leader—he is just as well equipped for the job, for example, as that other distinguished Nova Scotian, Sir Robert Borden, was when he took over the Conservative party.

The empty chair, I am told, squinted for a while at Mr. Fielding as temporary leader, and might probably have been happy with the Liberal-Unionist charmer if the clear Grit D. D. Mackenzie had been away. If Mr. Fielding had walked across it would have been the signal for other strayed sheep to follow, and to some it is a matter of regret that the choice did not turn that way. Fielding had almost swung back to Laurier when the Old Chief passed away—he had never wandered except on conscription—but that was not the sore spot. What Quebec remembered was his attitude on the autonomy bills in 1905 when the Laurier Government trembled on the brink of ruin while the Finance Minister made up his mind. Mr. Fielding will have other chances later on. The national convention may be inclined to make him permanent leader as a link between the East and the West, a tariff-for-revenue champion, who was thoroughly sound on reciprocity.
