Ideal of Unity Very Appropriate.

"To make Prince Rupert a great city the people must be united and stand together, for without unity you cannot hope to accomplish anything successfully."

The paragraph quoted above was written by George Hudson, a pupil of the High School, in an essay on Prince Rupert. The essay was not a prize winner, but this concluding sentence was so good and so appropriate to the occasion that it is quoted for the benefit of all the people of the city. It is an epigram that might well be committed to memory.

It has been said in a book which is not read as much as it might be, that "a little child shall lead them." The pupils of the High School are not little children, but they are young and full of enthusiasm and many of them have high ideals. If they carry those ideals with them into life the next generation will be much better than the present. They will make the men of the present take a back seat and in a good many cases it will be for the good of the community for them to do so.

It is of course quite a different thing to hold ideals from trying to carry them out. It is easy to acquire ideals but it is difficult to put into practice the things which we believe to be right.

Another Opinion on Railway Situation.

Under the heading "A National Danger" the Montreal Star of March 4 had the following leading article:

"The Star has repeatedly expressed the opinion that the nationalization of the Canadian railways or of either one of the Canadian railways now privately operated, would be a very serious blunder for which the country would be called to pay heavily in the future.

"There is, however, another danger to Canada even more serious than this mad plan for nationalization and that is the danger of an amalgamation of the two privately owned existing roads under one management.

"The Star is informed from London that strenuous efforts are being made by C. P. R. representatives in England to secure control of the Grand Trunk Railway. There is an interest payment in Grand Trunk Pacific securities falling due this week and the obvious inability of the Grand Trunk to provide for this interest gives an opening to force the Grand Trunk to sell out.

"The Star believes that such an amalgamation or absorption would be nothing short of a national calamity. The future development of this sparsely-settled and widely extended country depends largely on the maintenance of efficient transportation and this in turn depends to a very great extent upon the continuance of genuine competition among existing railway systems. This country cannot afford to see its principal railway facilities swallowed up by any monopoly which could thereby assume virtual control of transportation in the most thickly populated and highly developed industrial areas of Canada.

"The scheme must not be allowed to bear fruit. It would be disastrous to Canada if it did."
