Our Glasses Are Handsome

EXAMINE a pair of our glasses. Notice the crystal, clear material in the lenses—the highly polished and flawless surface. Feel the smooth, perfectly formed edge. See how carefully the mount is attached—secure, safe.

NOW put them on. Let your mirror tell the story. Makes you look younger? Surely. Brighter? Certainly. Handsomer? Of course.

WHY not let us make you a pair? Our glasses are beyond question the highest quality, and the handsomest obtainable. You will really not be satisfied with anything less.

We promise you satisfaction—
We keep our promises

EIGHTY-MILE GUN WAS NEVER USED

Signing of Armistice Prevented Use of Winston's Pet Against the Germans.

Since "Dora," the British Defence of the Realm Act, lost her sting stories of mystery ships and strange happenings in the war have been published, but at least one other story remains to be told. It concerns "Winston Churchill's pet," as the proud artisans of Sheffield named it.

"Winston's Pet" is not a mystery ship or anything of the sort that puts out to sea, but a great land gun to out-Bertha the notorious German "Big Bertha." It was so called because the Minister of Munitions had set his heart on having his gun just to show those Germans what the British can do when they want to. When the Minister made his last great munition tour a few weeks before the armistice was signed he was able to see his brand new pet on the stocks in the famous Vickers works ready for going forth to battle. "The boys" had chalked in a conspicuous place on the housing: "Winston's Pet. To Beat the Huns."

Standing beside this "toy" of a gun one felt a mere pygmy or like a microbe in a world of matter. The width across the breech end was almost as great as a moderate sized man is tall, and the length of the barrel was eighty-three feet or more. She was said authoritatively to be capable of firing a shell 80 miles. Others presumed to be well informed said that she would be destroyed beyond that distance.

She was, as far as an interested layman could judge, made on almost identical lines with the mammoth naval super-guns of which Sheffield has produced so many, but with the vital difference that double strength had been put into the barrel by the addition of another inner tube so that she would fire an eight inch shell instead of a fifteen inch shell. The breech charge apparently remained the same, so that the same explosive force used to propel a fifteen inch shell was behind the lesser and much lighter projectile. These conditions, therefore, apparently gave the gun its wonderful range.

Winston's eye beamed with delight as he walked up and down and around the gun and viewed its splendid points and marvelled at the engineering skill that could fashion such a monster from masses of rough steel.

Two men alleged to be draft evaders were again brought before Magistrate McMullin this morning in the police court and remanded until tomorrow morning.
