In the Letter Box OBJECTS TO LOAFERS

Some criticize the rain in Prince Rupert. Yet what a boon it is to the good ladies of the city! Were it not for this providential sprinkling it would be impossible for any self-respecting woman to pass the corner of Third Avenue and Sixth Street without experiencing decided embarrassment. For on rainy days this corner is WANTED-Experienced manager deserted and our wives, mothers and sisters may pass without undergoing scrutiny from undehealing essences promote the serving loafers whose unlovely carcasses add to the premises that local color common to all slums, and which in all self-respecting cities forms the subject of anti-loafing laws generally carried out in a most stringent WANTED PIANO. Second-hand. manner. But when the gentle dew from heaven ceases to fall upon the place beneath, our women must of necessity take to the streets or become cynosures for WANTED-To rent, furnished vicious eyes and the targets for indecent and even reviling remarks.

One woman has said that she was obliged to remove half a dozen street corner loafers with the pilot of her go-cart. Will our civic minions of the law continue to bask in idleness until it becomes necessary for the women of the town to band together and, armed with an array of go-carts, charge the loafing riffraff in order to make the streets passable for Bring your furs to Goldbloom, decent people?

Some drastic action should be taken soon if any of us profess to have any respect for our women folk and wish to spare them from daily embarrassment and insult which is ever becoming WANTED-Live delivery man at more and more frequent.

Yours truly, ONE VITALLY INTERESTED.
