DAILY EDITION.

Friday, May 9, 1919.

Peace Treaty is Very Complete.

Anyone who took the trouble to read through the resume of the Peace Treaty as set out in yesterday's News must have been impressed with its completeness. It seems to cover every point. It has been evolved by the best minds of the world. It is the work of the Big Four in consultation with all the other members of the conference.

Under the treaty Germany will be tied down in such a way that military dominance will be impossible and trade dominance will be out of the question for a long time to come. She will be held in such a way that she will not be able to escape making restitution for the wrongs she has done.

Great Work of Local Organization.

The Daily News is glad to add its meed of praise to those of all who heard the Musical Association's choir and the symphony orchestra at the concert last night. Those who have had charge of the work must have been pleased at the reception they received and the members of the choir themselves must have felt gratified that they have been able to do such good work. Possibly there might be a larger representation of the younger people of the city in the choir. There might also be a membership for those who, while not singers, might like to be identified with its activities and help in its support. If the big professional singers are to be secured, money will be needed.

Soldiers Returning From Siberia.

The soldiers are being brought home from Siberia as fast as possible. It seems to have been a mistake to send them. Before their embarkation the armistice had been signed, and most of the men went much against their wills. They joined the corps to help win the war, not to interfere with the interior economy of Siberia or Russia. So great was the dissatisfaction at having to go that there was almost a mutiny at Victoria before embarkation.

There must have been many mistakes in the war. From time to time we shall hear of them. The operations were so big and there were so many amateurs enlisted to do professional work that mistakes were bound to be made. Canadians will, however, be glad to know that no more precious lives are to be wasted in interfering with the quarrels between sections of Russians.
