CANADIAN SCOTTISH, THEIR GREAT ADVENTURE ABROAD AND SERVICE TO EMPIRE

left of the 16th and Generals Mercer and Williams were killed. The enemy advanced as much as three miles in some places, until stopped by the 7th, 10th, 14th and 15th Battalions. The 16th counter attacked on June 13 and recaptured all the territory which had previously been captured by the Germans.

The battalion proceeded to the Somme in September, 1916, and went over the top three times and suffered 1,260 casualties in three trips, being reinforced three times. For work on the Somme where he was killed Piper Richardson was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross.

Helped at Vimy.

From the Somme the battalion was ordered to the vicinity of Vimy Ridge and spent the winter in the trenches in that district. The capture of the ridge on April 9, 1917, is still fresh in the memory of all, where Cy Peck led the battalion with Piper Jimmy Groat who received the military medal for this exploit.

After a spell "in" at Hill 70 during the summer, the 16th went with the rest of the First Division to Passchendaele, which was probably the bloodiest battle of any in which the Canadian Corps took part. Heavy casualties was the rule in every battalion there.

From Passchendaele the Canadian Scottish were allotted to a sector of trenches in the Lens district. It was there that Lieut. Wilfrid Reddihough was killed, while bandaging a wounded comrade.

In the spring and early summer of 1918, during the German drive the 16th having been sent to stay the fresh attack, were in the trenches at Lens and Arras. They took their part in the British offensive at Amiens, which was the start of what is known as the Cambrai scrap.

Mike to Germany.

When Fritz was fairly on the run the battalion started on the long hike to Germany. About a month before the armistice was signed Rupert lost two more of her originals in Capt. E. O. Reichel and Corporal Algy Hastings, so probably the first and last Rupert boys who made the supreme sacrifices were with the Canadian Scottish.

On arrival at Cologne the men just grabbed "Old Cy Peck" and packed him on their shoulders into the city.

The Officers.

The Sixteenth had three colonels, but Peck held the job down the longest, both his predecessors being made major generals. The Battalion has the unique record of having six V.C.'s on its roll, four of whom are alive. Among the notable officers who served in the 16th are Major General R. G. Edwards Leckie, C. M. G., Major General Jack Edwards Leckie, D. S. O., Major R. O. Bell-Irving, D. S. O., killed in action, Major Godson Godson, D. S. O., Major J. A. Scroggie, Russian order of St. Michael and French Médaille Militaire, who went over as a private and who is now second in command, Capt. Tommy Brewer, M.M., who held every rank up to a captain, Captain E. O. Reichel, "a brave and gallant gentleman," Lieut.-Col. Walter Flewin (48th Batt.) of Port Simpson, who was a private with Rupert's originals in the 16th, Lieut.-Col. William Rae, D. S. O., Lieut. Wilfrid Macdonald, who is now minus a leg, but with as big a heart as ever.

The last of the "originals" from Rupert of the rank and file has recently returned in the person of Malcolm Lamb.

Sports.

In sports the battalion has always held up its end, winning the brigade football championship in 1917 and in 1918 No. 3 platoon won the Canadian Corps championship as the smartest platoon in the corps, every battalion competing for this coveted honor.

The regimental motto is "Deas Gu Cath," which means "Ready for Battle," a most fitting motto for a regiment with such a distinguished record as the 16th Canadian Scottish.

MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY IS FEATURE PICTURE

Splendid Production at Empress
Tonight Based on Everett Hale's Book.

A great six-reel Special Jewel production will be seen at the Empress tonight of the famous book by Edward Everett Hale "The Man Without a Country."

This peace-at-any-price believer is so annoyed at the insistence of his sweetheart and immediate friends that he do his bit that he damns the flag of his country and says he would like to be where he could never hear the name spoken again. Later he is tried for treason and the sentence imposed on him is that he be banished, never to hear of his flag or country.

For fifty-five years he is not allowed to see or hear anything from home. Before his death he prays night and morning for many years and asks to be returned.

The uncle and aunt, who are pacifists, are convinced, although they are against war, that the country is for it, and they pledge their loyalty and support. The young man after reading "The Man Without a Country" is convinced it alludes to his case and immediately changes his views and joins the colors.

J. Robertson was among the arrivals from Vancouver on the Venture yesterday afternoon.
