WELCOME TO RETURNED MEN BY ST. ANDREWS

Enjoyable Time Spent Last Night By Sons of Scotland in Their Club Rooms.

The St. Andrew's Society last night extended an official welcome to those members who have returned from overseas, and following out the custom, made a presentation to one who had returned with a Scotch lassie for a wife. There was a large attendance, so large that the gathering was held in the big hall. After a somewhat lengthy program of music and speeches, supper was served by the ladies in the rooms upstairs and following it was a dance which was kept up until Scotsmen's festive hours.

President Macdonald welcomed the men back on behalf of the society and mentioned that no less than 57 of their members out of 100 had gone overseas, and some would never return. He paid a tribute to the Scotchmen who, while not members, had made it possible for them to secure comfortable quarters, the best of their kind in B. C. Those who could not go overseas had felt it incumbent upon them to keep up the quarters in order to be in a position to welcome the members back. On behalf of the society he thanked those who had fought for them and for their families.

Sergt. Kelly.
Q. M. Sergt. Jack Kelly expressed his pleasure at being once more at home among friends and at finding the society more prosperous than ever. The news of how they were getting on at home encouraged them when at the front. They often met in groups over there and talked of the St. Andrew's Society. While Scotsmen were probably clannish, if everyone helped each other as they did it would be better for the world. Scotsmen had rallied to the flag, some of whom perhaps should have stayed at home. He had not thought he had so many friends in the world. The men at home had made it possible for him to go. The greatest worry had always been the possible answer to the question, "How are the folks at home?" He thanked the members for the way in which they had helped his family during his absence.

Dr. Grant.
Dr. Grant in mentioning the clannishness of the Scotchmen said there was no parsimony when it came to giving their lives for the Empire. They were always willing to support any good cause. The folks at home fully appreciated what the men had done. He spoke of the work of such men as Scotty Dennis, who in spite of severe handicaps, had helped to stop autocracy and were now home to help work out the problems here.

Home Problems.
Dr. Grant spoke of some of the problems of the present. There was the duty to the soldier who had gone and returned incapacitated, the duty to the widows and orphans, the re-establishment of the men in civil life. There was also the settling of the disturbance of civil society caused by the war. There was nothing to be gained by class division. The spirit of brotherhood must be shown in every walk of life so that every man might get his just due. He did not, however, believe in revolution but in evolution. At present all wage earners, and he was one, felt the pinch of the high cost of living. He spoke of the large number of millionaires in the United States and of the extremes of wealth and poverty, giving a number of figures to illustrate the point. This made for discontent. The men had fought autocracy and he hoped they were come back to fight plutocracy. They should stand shoulder to shoulder to see that everyone got his just due. This could be done, not by dividing society but by the spirit of brotherhood on a religious basis.

J. C. Brady gave a short humorous address. He said that the world had changed when the men went away. The returned soldier philosophy he prophesied would permeate at home. He thanked the returned men for having fought on his behalf and on behalf of his household. The presentation of an art reading lamp to Mr. and Mrs. Massie took place at the close of the supper.

WHY EXPERIMENT?

Food scientists claim that the leavener is largely responsible for the flavor, texture and wholesomeness of your home baking. That on no other one ingredient does so much depend. It is important, therefore, to use a baking powder that you know possesses the necessary leavening qualities.
