Pensions to Be Increased,

But Not Equalized.

The Pensions Commission are talking of increasing all pensions twenty per cent. There is no proposal before them, so far as the report goes, to have the pensions equalized. It is pleasant for a man who was an officer to get a large pension, we are not objecting to that, but what we do object to is to his getting more than the private.

When the men enlisted they did it from patriotic motives. The private served his country just as well as the officer. There was no particular objection to the officer getting more than the private because in the old country where he went an officer was obliged to spend more than those of lower rank. Now that the war is over, however, it should be recognized that one man is just as good as another, that the private served just as well as the officer, and that he is deserving of just as much recognition. In this country there is no social distinction between the officer and the private, for the privates in very many cases became officers before the war was over. Why then the distinction in the matter of pensions?

Mexico

Under Carranza.

A book issued by Doubleday Page & Co., "Mexico Under Carranza," is rather an indictment of the American policy and of the Government of Carranza than a sincere attempt to depict | the condition of the country. It is very interesting and may be read with profit by students of Mexican affairs, but all the way made to register Thomas McManamon, through the writer leaves the impression that he is a lawyer | der a rax sale beed from the collector proving a case. He certainly proves it, but that does not seem the 10th day of Lecember, 1918, of ALL to get the reader anywhere.

The main indictments against Carranza and his followers being in the City of Prince Rupert, more is that they have treated the peons so badly that many of them have died of starvation and those who are left are almost without | Section eight (8), (Map 923). hope; that industry has been destroyed and the investment of capital made impossible, and that the Catholic Church and its influence has been largely destroyed or nullified.

The writer describes the awful condition of the country in some de ail and quotes very largely from newspapers. The con- ing extract therefrom:clusion which he reaches at the close of his argument is that the American people should let the Mexicans alone except where American interests are involved and that those interests should be protected. One interesting paragraph gives an insight into the general purpose of the book:

"The experience of the masses of the people under the Government given the major portion of Mexico by the Carranza party furnishes a striking parallel to that of the Russians at the hands of the Bolsheviki. In every country there exists a predatory element whose chief ambition is to secure control of the machinery of government by violence and then to use it in depriving industrious, frugal people of the property they have accumulated and dividing it among themselves. This element is represented in Mexico by the Carranza party, in Russia by the Bolsheviki, and in the United States by the I. W. W."

Many Birds

Frequent New Park.

MARK IN THE WORLP

One of the enjoyable features of the new park is the number pursuance of such application and issue a of birds which frequent the place. They are small russet-backed thrushes of the proposed action on my part.

Dated at the Land Registry Omce, Prince west that are not much larger than a fox sparrow. Usually these Rupert, B. C., this 11th day of April, 1919. birds are very secretive and keep well to the bush, but here they show themselves and seem to be everywhre just now.

Besides the thrushes there are juncoes with their nobby black heads, western winter wrens that sing almost continuously at this time of year, and an occasional song sparrow. Other sparrows visit the place occasionally and robins are sometimes found there. Chicadees are seen in the hemlocks and passing finches and fox sparrows.

Now that the paths have been built those who like to see the birds will have a better opportunity to sit on the comfortable seats which are provided and get in touch with the inhabitants.
