EMPLOY MANY RETURNED MEN IN FISHERIES

Inspector Williams Tells of Work Being Done in This Fisheries District.

J. T. C. Williams, inspector of fisheries, who arrived on the afternoon of Saturday after visiting all the salmon fisheries in the southern portion of his district, says that returned soldiers are applying for gill-net licenses in all portions of the district, and provision has been made to supply these men with boats and nets and the arrangements made by the inspector in each of the areas visited have proved very satisfactory. The returned soldiers, fishermen and all interested have expressed themselves as entirely satisfied.

Gill Net Licenses.

On the Skeena river this year one hundred and twenty-seven salmon gill-net licenses are reserved for returned soldiers, and these will be held until the 1st of June. The reason for such reserve being made is that returned soldiers who take out licenses by June 1 up to the number stated may have no difficulty in obtaining a boat and net. In the event of a returned soldier being unable to take out a license before June 1 then the inspector will endeavor to arrange for him to obtain a license if he so desires.

Employing Returned Men.

Clearing streams of obstructions to the ascent of salmon to their spawning grounds is another work that is already under way, and parties of returned soldiers are being employed in different parts of the district to carry out this work. This not only gives employment to returned men but is also of the greatest importance to the fishing industry.

Thirty returned soldiers are employed in this district on patrol work alone, exclusive of those employed in hatcheries, or in the removal of obstructions, etc. The employment of a number of men is made possible by the increase of license fees, all of which will be expended on the fisheries of the province.

Herring Pounds.

Pounds for herring fisheries have been established and permission given to some of those desiring to participate in this industry for the purpose of providing live bait for halibut fishermen. It is believed that this will prevent the shortage of bait that has been so detrimental to the halibut fisheries.

Extension of the weekly close season for salmon gill-net and seining fisheries has been extended six hours, and instead of running from six a. m. on Saturday to six p. m. on Sunday, the weekly close season will commence at four o'clock on Saturday morning and terminate at ten o'clock on Sunday night.

The prospects for packers and fishermen in all branches of the fisheries in District No. 2 are brighter, and it is believed if
