ONE BIG UNION ORGANIZATION BEING PLANNED

George Rudderham is Delegate to Present Local Views at the Calgary Convention.

The One Big Union committee is organized in Prince Rupert, according to a report made to the Trades and Labor Council at its meeting last night. The chairman is Alderman Casey, Secretary W. A. Pilford and the other members of the committee are Messrs. Dawson, Gillis and Rose.

The delegates chosen last night to attend the organization meeting at Calgary is George Rudderham, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council.

While the delegate is left free to vote and act as he thinks wise, a scheme has been prepared by the local committee which he is expected to bring before the convention. Under this scheme there would be a central governing body at some point such as Winnipeg or Calgary to which all per capita dues would be sent and which would have power of arranging for unity of action in case of a strike.

District Bodies.

District bodies would be formed composed of delegates from the various industries in the place. In Prince Rupert, for instance, instead of delegates being sent from the carpenters, the fish packers, the millworkers and the clerks, there would be representatives from the cold storage, the drydock, the shipyards, the mill, the machine shops, etc. Delegates from the cold storage would represent all the interests at the cold storage whether fishpackers, clerks, laborers, engineers or firemen, and the same would apply to other industries.

A shop steward would be appointed for each industry and this man would be the intermediary between the employers and the employees. In case of his failing to adjust the differences between the employers and the men, the matter would come before the district body, and further efforts would then be made to arrange terms before a strike would be called. This may not be the scheme finally arranged, but it seems to be the local idea of what it should be.

To Prevent Strikes.

In the course of discussion it was stated that the idea of the One Big Union was to prevent strikes. The men always were losers from strikes even when they won their point. It was to the advantage of labor that there should be no strikes. No provision was made in the local scheme for strike pay, it being the opinion that in case of action being necessary the strike would be so short that strike pay would be unnecessary.

A question was asked whether the One Big Union would recognize trades which were objectionable, such as that of bartenders where the members sold poison, which injured the members of the community or munition makers where the object was destruction. It was pointed out that there would be numerous questions which would have to be settled from time to time by the organization.

It was reported that the four western provinces, as far east as Port Arthur, had so far gone overwhelmingly in favor of the One Big Union. As long as a few locals wanted to keep the charter of the Trades and Labor Council they could do so, but the opinion seemed to be general that they would all want to come into the new organization.

MRS. G. B. HARRISON DIES AT SEATTLE

Indian Agent Thomas Deasy recently received the sad intelligence of the demise of his sister, Mrs. G. B. Harrison, of Seattle. The deceased lady was a native daughter of New Westminster, where she was born 58 years ago. Many friends throughout the province will be grieved to learn of the death of this pioneer lady, so well and generally known by the many old timers, whose ranks are becoming depleted rapidly. A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends followed the remains to Calvary cemetery at Seattle, where the body was interred alongside that of her eldest son.
