LOYAL TO PRINCE RUPERT AND TO EACH OTHER, SAYS JUDGE YOUNG IN ADDRESS

of the differences unity of action is found. When dealing with Board matters the members should look at each other as perfect strangers in regard to the business in hand. There should be no thought of social standing, of family or political differences. Everything but the business in hand should be forgotten. Without that attitude there can be no sympathetic union."

The speaker said that he had looked down on the cockpit of political struggles for the past fifteen years and he had seen that we were cursed with politics. All sorts of things were drawn in and mixed with things which were not political.

"We speak by majorities and it is a good thing for people during the campaign to express their views in order that others may be able to judge, but when the fight is over all should put on their coats and shake hands and get together. The professional politicians will inject politics into everything. Then there is the innocent politician who wears a political label on his back. The animal is seen on election day telling that he has never known any member of his family vote other than Conservative or Liberal as the case may be. Injecting politics into everything is like throwing the monkey wrench into the engine. There are not many such men in the north and the west. The place is too big for them."

Great Part.

In regard to energetic action it was the duty of every man to see that British Columbia took her proper place in Canada and to see that Prince Rupert took her proper place in British Columbia. This was the time when it would be decided whether this was just the end of steel or a great terminus at the end of a transcontinental railway. He was satisfied that this was going to be a great port. The people showed splendid confidence in the place because of their geographical position and their wealth of resources. He suggested that we should remember the words of Mr. Erb when he said that the success of the shipbuilding in this city would depend upon the assistance that was given it. This warning of Mr. Erb's given before the work commenced was most timely. If it fails now it is our own fault.

Preparedness.

"The secret of success is preparedness. There is only one case where that has failed and that was in the recent war with Germany. In Vancouver and Seattle the rats once had possession of the warehouses, but the people were looking for opportunities and the discovery of the goldfields gave both a start. We should make an effort to get the ocean docks, to get ships sailing from here across the ocean, get our coal in the interior developed, keep working, see that the Alaska trade came here where it belonged."

We were sometimes told that Vancouver was stealing our trade, that was not true. Vancouver was just taking it. It was for us to not let them. There were some little people who talked about Vancouver knocking us. That was all nonsense. The great mass of businessmen realized that development here would help them. There was room for two big cities on the coast which would help each other.

The Judge spoke of a visit to Los Angeles where everybody spoke of nothing but Los Angeles to such an extent that it affected everyone. He mentioned the desirability of advertising, and suggested as one of the means the admirable little paper Resources. The more money it got the bigger and better it would be. He also spoke of the desirability of co-operating with the railway for without the railway there could be no city.

The Judge said he could not omit the opportunity of speaking a word for the returned soldier, and of the duty of taking care of him by giving him a good position. "Be loyal to Prince Rupert and to each other and pull together," he concluded. Let it be Prince Rupert first, last and all the time and then we shall marvel at the advancement we make." A vote of thanks was moved by H. S. Wallace and seconded by G. W. Nickerson and carried by acclamation. M. P. McCaffery presided.

PURITY - QUALITY - ECONOMY

With the increased cost of labor and materials due to war conditions, it is not reasonable to suppose that a really first class baking powder can be made and sold at the old prices. Rather than sacrifice the quality of

we found it necessary to make slight increases in price during the war period. Even though Magic Baking Powder may cost a few cents more than the ordinary kinds it is still by far the most economical baking powder on the market to-day when purity, strength and leavening qualities are taken into consideration.

UNITED AIRCRAFT TO HAVE BRANCH HERE

So Says Article in Recent Issue of Vancouver World.

Victoria, Prince Rupert and Nelson are to possess branches of the United Aircraft of British Columbia, Ltd., the company which is being incorporated under the control of Messrs. H. S. and J. B. Hoffar of Vancouver, where the headquarters of the concern will be situated, says the Vancouver World.

With a capital of $100,000 the company has secured sales rights in this province for the J. N.-4 plane, purchased from the Imperial Munitions Board by a syndicate represented in this country by F. G. Ericson of Toronto, and in the United States by the United Aircraft Engineering Corporation of New York. This latter syndicate, which is headed by Roy Conger, F. G. Ericson and C. W. Diffin will have representation on the Vancouver Company.

It is the intention of United Aircraft of B. C. to specialize in sea planes, and a number of the J. N.-4 planes will be adopted for use on water surfaces. The company will build hangars and establish aerodromes, and is expecting the arrival of the first carload of planes from the east in ten days or less.

SMITHERS MAN WEDS

St. Mathew's Church, Winnipeg, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday, April 10th, when Miss Florence Underhill, daughter of J. H. Underhill of that city, was joined in the bonds of matrimony to David Jennings, of Smithers. After the ceremony the newly married couple left on a short trip to the coast and arrived at Smithers on Wednesday night. The bride was until recently resident at Smithers and a number of friends were at the station to welcome the bride and groom.
