WHY DEPRESSION MUST GO

Some of our good friends, almost resentfully, it would seem, ask us why we are so certain that the clouds of depression will lift soon and better times be upon us before we know it. Possibly the most important reason why business will start returning to normal before so very long now is that people are now running out of the necessities of life nal such as food and clothing and it will be necessary to replen- water polo. ish almost immediately.

The needs of the people are getting such that the wheels of production and distribution will have to start turning before long, bringing better times with their motion. No matter how it may come about, and what readjustments it may involve, and there seems to be no necessity for red revolution either to start them going, these wheels will be in motion soon—for move they must.

It is inconceivable that the state of stagnation, from which we can already discern signs of recovery, should continue forever. It is against the laws both of human na- style, men, final. ture and economics.

WHY WEAR LONG FACE?

Meantime, it will certainly not help to bring good times back any quicker if our good friends, whatever their plight may be, should continue to go around wearing long faces and being resentful when some one has the temerity to suggest that he sees better times ahead.

At the risk of being called unsympathetic, we would suggest that it is more important today than it ever was K. Murray, A. Horn and D. Gurbefore for us to be wearing smiles, that is providing we vich. have not forgotten how to smile altogether, rather than the old frown which a lot of us have been cultivating more lately than there has been any good reason for.

Wiser persons than we have suggested that the depression has been largely phsychological as far as a lot of folk. THRIFT sion has been largely phsychological as far as a lot of folk have been concerned—at the same time admitting that, for a good many, the going has been rough enough this past year or so.

Anyway, it will do none of us any good to continue stewing in our own misery. Why try to convince ourselves that times will never be any better? Even though we frow are not the most of us really looking for the ray of sun
