MINING NOTES FROM THE BOUNDARY COUNTRY

Mining activity is increasing around Slocan City.

Cunningham's big mill at Alamo in the Slocan began crushing ore last Saturday.

The ground at Swift river in the Cariboo, is being tested by a Keystone drill in search of gold for dredging operations.

Silver for the next 20 years should sell for from $1 to $1.29 an ounce. At present the demand is doubly as great as the supply.

Crede Bonebrake of Goldendale, Wash., has gone to the Yukon with a small hydraulic plant. He will work some placer ground north of Teslin lake.

Rich copper deposits have been found at depth on the Snowstorm group in Highland Valley. The diamond drill shows bornite and chalcopryite at a depth of 600 feet.

It is expected that before long the mines in Rossland will be shipping from 2,000 to 5,000 tons of ore every day. The old camp will look like '97 when that comes about.

Mining companies having properties in districts about Oroville will have sufficient power for their operations in another year when the expansion of the Okanagan Valley Power Company will have been well advanced. While the extension of its system is designed chiefly for the development of agricultural and municipal enterprises of the Okanagan valley the power company will be in a position to supply energy to the mining companies who have sought more power for years.—Greenwood Ledger.

SOCIAL PROGRESS

To the Editor,

Vast reforms do not come in a day. The great danger of the hour is impatience. There will always be inequality in the distribution of wealth, but excessive inequality is a social injustice. Economic laws are not fixed by nature, they can be regulated by man. How to bring about a more equitable distribution of wealth is the problem which must be faced without delay but it must be faced with wisdom.

In scores of different ways the competitive system is giving place to the co-operative system. To keep pace with these changes the wage system must be modified. The more complex our industrial life becomes the more necessary will it be to combine interests. Both on the side of the employers and on the side of the employed will collective bargaining, in an ascending scale, be required until the principle of sectional competition finally gives way to the principle of universal co-operation, and the Christian spirit of brotherly fellowship and mutual service gets a fair opportunity to express itself in action.

It is well to keep before us an ideal system, but it is well also to be clear in our mind as to the best method of approach.

The revisionary method aims at creating public sentiment through the agency of the press, the school, the union and the church, which will bring such pressure to bear in a constitutional manner that our present inadequate laws will be revised and progressive legislation enacted which will gradually bring about a more equitable distribution of wealth. This method avoids the sudden dislocation of the whole commercial world with its inevitable misery. This is the British way.

The revolutionary method aims at the sudden overturning of the present capitalistic system. It is primarily a destructive policy, and so of necessity comes at once into conflict with constitutional authority. It has no well defined constructive policy, and so even if successful in overthrowing the present order of things years of crude experimenting with visionary theories must elapse before a better order of things could be established upon a firm foundation. This is the Russian way.—F. H. DU VERNET.

To the Editor,

Dear Sir,—Pardon me if I ask for a little space to comment upon the letter yesterday signed Jennie Smith. I am afraid that the lady who wrote the letter is not used to this western country, where everyone does as he or she thinks fit—and we don't have to lock our doors at night for fear of thieves. No, you can bet on that, for the people who come to our western country are big hearted, honest people, not rotten hypocrites.

If a man does hammer a few nails in on a Sunday (after working hard for six days a week) he is doing it to give his wife and children a better home, or perhaps making use of a fine day to get his garden in shape.

What if a lady clerk or stenographer is ironing out a waist before going to meet her best boy—is that anybody's business? And I hope that next Sunday the people of Prince Rupert put on the best and latest selections of canned music that can float through their windows.

If anyone does not like our western ways, they don't have to walk around on Sunday and rubber-neck at all the houses to see what is going on. They could take a walk up the pipe line and get next to nature and the mosquitoes.

Yours, etc.,
JOHN MYHIL-JONES.

TELKWA NOTES
A dance will be held on Monday night when the Westholme orchestra of Prince Rupert will furnish the music.
The Royal Bank has decided to erect their new premises adjoining the hotel and work on it was started this week.
Operations have been resumed at the Telkwa Collieries and the company has several teams hauling the output to the bunkers at the depot. Two cars of coal were shipped west this week and it is expected this rate will be maintained throughout the summer. The road to the mine is in good shape now, the government having spent considerable money on it this spring.
