GOVT. MAKES STATEMENT REGARDING ACTION IN TAKING OVER G. T. P.

sary in order to insure continuance of the system, the Government fell back on the War Measures Act and appointed the Minister of Railways receiver.

McKenzie's Criticism.

When the resolution was introduced D. D. McKenzie said it was proper that the people should have the fullest possible information. It was alleged that the Government had not complied with the agreement entered into in 1904 and had made it impossible for the company to carry on. There should be a clear statement of the financial standing of the company to March 10th last. He did not at all agree with the steps taken by the Government in this connection. The War Measures Act was never intended to be used in connection with matters of this kind.

Mr. Mackenzie said that now the war was over there was no emergency in connection with the measure, and when there was not only a statute but a well established practice dealing with cases of this kind, it was an innovation of an undesirable character to start proceedings of this character. It would lead to entanglements and difficulties of a very serious nature. Parliament was not the proper body to usurp the functions of a Judge of a Court. The Company had not been given an opportunity of being heard.

In Committee.

When the House went in committee on the resolution White said request McKenzie correspondence and other information was reasonable. He gave a resume of the transaction between the Government and the Grand Trunk Pacific, showing that the Grand Trunk Railway owned all the stock and does own it.

Mr. Lemieux asked if interest on the loans had been always paid. The interest was always paid, Sir Thomas replied, because Parliament voted the money.

Burden on Government.

Sir Thomas referred to evidence given before the Drayton-Acworth commission in 1916. It showed that the Grand Trunk would not continue to be responsible for payment of interest on the Grand Trunk Pacific securities, nor would they be responsible for deficits in operating, but would cast the entire burden of the Grand Trunk Pacific upon the Government.

Mr. MacKenzie asked if the Grand Trunk could relieve itself of its responsibilities under the original agreements.

Relieve Grand Trunk.

Sir Thomas White: "I say no, legally they would not" but if the Government continued to vote seven and a half million dollars a year, it would relieve the Grand Trunk for the year in which it was voted of paying any interest on securities which the Government had guaranteed. The Drayton-Acworth report, Sir Thomas went on, recommended that the Grand Trunk be surrendered into the hands of the people of Canada.
