JAP PROBLEM IS DELICATE

Two Sides to Question with Many Diplomatic Difficulties.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(By Canadian Press).—In view of the importance of the Japanese question to the people of the United States, the action of the Dominions conference in London on the question of the Anglo-Japanese alliance is being awaited eagerly by officials here. When the conflicting interests of Japan and the United States in the Far East, especially China, the island of Yap problem, the California question, and a score of other disputed points that may cause trouble between the United States and the Nippon government remaining to be settled, there seems to be strong hope here that the British Dominions, especially Canada, Australia and New Zealand, will take a hand at the conference to prevent Great Britain from tying herself up too closely with Japan.

The trend of thought in Washington on this question is indicated in a statement just issued by the Republican National Publicity Association through the president, former Senator Jonathan Bourne. Dealing with the coming conference in London, Mr. Bourne says:

Principal Subject.

"One of the principal subjects to come before the meeting will be the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance. In the action taken on that matter the United States has more than a passing interest, in view of the points now in dispute between this country and Japan. The premiers of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa have already signified their intention of opposing a continuance of the treaty if they see in it anything unacceptable to the United States. The three of these Dominions in particular are faced with much the same Japanese problems as is the United States, and are determined that they shall never be placed in opposition to a nation that maintains their own viewpoint.

"The British home government on the other hand, is embarrassed by its desire not to raise the race question while there is danger of an uprising in India. Likewise it cannot lose sight of the fact that Japan was an ally in the war and rendered considerable assistance to the allied cause. An eye must also be kept on the possibility of a future compact between Japan, Russia and Germany as a menace to world peace, which a present Anglo-Japanese understanding might forestall.

Two Sides.

"There are two sides to the question when considered from the angle of present-day world politics, but it is likely that its final solution will be guided by reasons more far-reaching and fundamental. The Caucasian race cannot afford to be divided against itself. If the next half century sees as rapid a growth in Oriental power and influence as the last, the white nations will have to take council among themselves on how to meet a common danger. Even now, if she chose to do so, Japan could extend her boundary almost indefinitely northward into Siberia, and the means she has adopted in the last few years to overawe the Chinese and Koreans are notorious. Although there is an antagonism at present between China and Japan, fifty years hence may well see the huge man power of China molded into a Japanese weapon of war—and the natural resources of Siberia transformed under direction into an inexhaustible source of munitions.

Trouble With India.

"Treaties of alliance could never prevent the conflict that such a menace would portend. They would merely delay precautionary measures that Great Britain and other nations might otherwise take. When that time comes both the United States and Great Britain will be equally endangered, and they must both be free to consider a mutual defence, British control over India might be affected to some extent in refusing a renewal of the Japanese alliance by reason of race, but when the propitious moment comes, Japan will find it just as easy to foment trouble with the natives of India with a treaty as without. In any case that is the natural course her intrigues would take, and Great Britain would better provide against it now than deude herself into a false sense of security through a treaty of alliance with Japan.

"The American people, as well as the British, should be alive to the possibilities of the next fifty years. Should war come between the United States and Japan, we would find it very convenient to have British moral and material sympathy behind us. The presence in London of the Japanese crown prince is evidence of the anxiety of the Orientals to keep on a friendly footing with Britain, but such blandishments must not blind Caucasian eyes to the need for the closest racial ties.

BIG LIGHTHOUSE SHIP COMING NORTH SOON

Estevan Will Spend Weeks in Northern Waters; Newington to Victoria.

The big lighthouse tender Estevan, Captain-Jarvis, will arrive here from Victoria in about two week's time to spend several weeks in northern waters performing heavy work for the marine department. The Newington, Captain Bilton, the regular vessel stationed here, will go south, on the arrival of the Estevan, to take care of the work of the Victoria depot.

At the present time the Newington is on an extended cruise to the south as far as Cape St. James, the northerly end of Vancouver Island, in connection with the work of the department.

NEW VESSEL BIRNIE MAKES FIRST TRIP

Took Captain Saunders and Engineer Stamford to Stewart On Saturday.

The new lighthouse tender Birnie left on Saturday for Stewart on her first trip out of the Digby Island Marine Depot in her duties in northern waters. Captain E. Saunders, superintendent, and W. L. Stamford, engineer, went on the vessel to make an inspection of the dock that was built last year. They are expected back tomorrow.

AUTHOR SAYS "THE SIN THAT WAS HIS" IS HIS BEST STORY

Man Who Wrote "The Miracle Man" Says New Faversham Picture Excels.

Interest in the Selznick picture, "The Sin That Was His," directed by Hobart Henley and starring William Faversham, which will be shown at the Westholme Theatre tonight reached new heights when Frank L. Packard, author of the story, voiced his belief that the feature is as great if not greater than any photoplay ever made from one of his stories.

Everyone who has read "The Sin That Was His" is aware that the author achieved marked originality of plot and characterization in its telling. It is interesting, therefore, to have Mr. Packard say that the screen version will greatly emphasize these qualities.

Among the players who appear in Mr. Faversham's support are Lucy Cotton, Pedro de Cordoba, Lulu Warrenton, Robby Connelly, Miriam Battista, George Stevens, Frank Evans, Lou O'Connor and Bobby Agnew.

"SNARES OF PARIS" TO BE SEEN HERE TONIGHT

"Snare of Paris" is the alluring title of a new William Fox release that has been making a big hit and is announced for the Empress Theatre tonight. This photoplay is said to show the beautiful star, Madame Traverso—who is a favorite here—at her very best; and that means very, very fine. The plot indicates a brilliant picture of social and political Paris, with a view of the underworld; the latter set, it is said, being an exact replica of a Latin Quarter resort.

Her role being that of a social leader, Miss Traverso promises views of some stunning Paris gowns.

MARY PICKFORD FILMS SHOULD BE EXCLUDED

HAMILTON, Ont., June 13.—Attorney-General W. E. Raney's efforts to abolish race track gambling were commended by several delegates in a discussion at the annual meeting of the Hamilton Methodist conference here last week, when the conference went on record as opposed to horse racing. The conference attacked "movies" and demanded a stricter censorship. Rev. G. Cropp, of Lynden, Ont., said that films of Mary Pickford should be excluded from entering this country.
